POCKETS CREATE
SENSATION

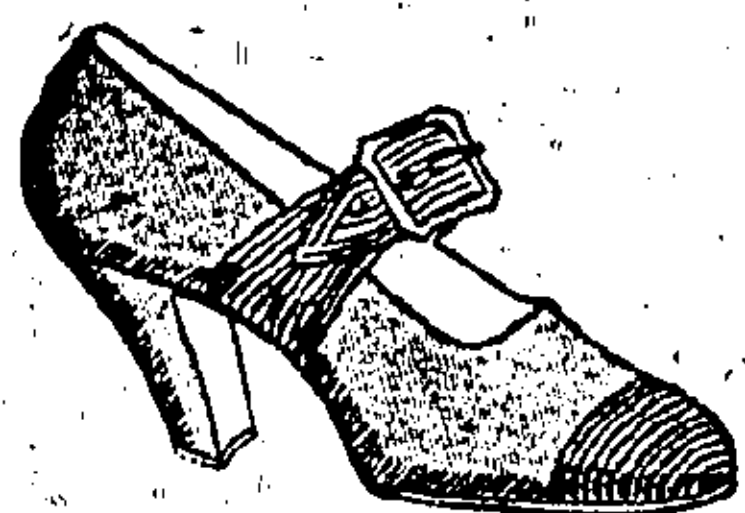

Pockets have suddenly come into the Paris limelight, writes a correspondent. It is no longer merely a question of pockets or no pockets, one of the old-time seasonal dress questions, but concerns a really new type of pocket that will be much discussed in the course of the next few days.

A Paris dress expert who is now spending all the hours of the day and well into the night in studying the latest moves of fashion, that the new pockets are shaped like a gauntlet glove with fingers, fan-shaped in black kid, as little handbags with metal fastenings and paraisols that open and shut.

Imagine these pocket motifs split in half as it were and applied at either side beneath waistlines.

Brown leather purse-patch-pockets appear on the short basque of a beige woollen suit.

A black kid belt, with the dial of a clock keeping time to buckle it together is another quaint novelty.

SUMMER

GLAMOROUS AUTUMN FASHION FABRICS

Modern Cloths Of Gold And Silver

LACQUERED MATERIALS

Colours may be dark for the coming season, but fabric manufacturers are determined that they shall not be dull. Glamorous lame effects, mainly of gold, relieve the darkest purples, claret reds, and browns, while heavy matelasse designs offer unlimited play of light and shade.

Matelasses and cloques are well to the fore in the autumn collections. Many of these silks are "peppered" with fine metal threads—very discretely so for afternoon and informal wear, but more heavily for later in the evening when they flaunt rich golden patterns.

Cloque velvets are something new, and look so "crushed" already, with the pile running all ways, that the additional creases caused by their fair wearers sitting down will certainly pass unnoticed.

NEW CLOQUE PATTERNS
Floral motifs, or nature subjects such as birds and dragonflies are favoured new cloque designs, and gold and silver threads are mingled together in many silks. Black gros-grains are woven with coloured metal threads—blues catching the light like sunshine upon a crow's wings, or greens and reds with the iridescent glitter of tropical butterflies.

Heavy gold or silver ottomans in broad ribs woven upon brightly coloured silk grounds; ribs of velvet pile upon georgette; or velvet flowers upon organza foundations—these are but a few of the novelty fabrics upon which the fingers of Parisian dressmakers are busy at the moment in preparation for the first important showings, which will take place next week.

Heavily lacquered cloque effects look like freshly laid oil-paint skillfully applied with a palette knife in great swirling designs. I have seen "paint" prints of flowers and butterflies which have every appearance of being done by hand, and new printing in metal both of designs and backgrounds.

Double-faced or reversible fabrics promise to enjoy great popularity throughout the season. Du-chesse satins, shiny on both sides, or heavy crepe satins with their dull sides reversing to shiny, are well featured in the collections; and panne velvet surfaces with dull backs, which are equally suitable for dresses or blouses, have received much attention.

FUR-LIKE WOOLLENS

The new woollens for coats and dresses are either very plain and distinguished-looking or excitingly fanciful. Some are shiny, with long sleek pole-cat hairs, or rough with knobs of mohair-like lumps of astrakhan—woven in stripes or pastilles upon dull woollen crepe grounds. Astrakhan, indeed, has influenced a great many of the winter coat fabrics. They come striped, crossed, and "blobbed" with mohair "boucletest", while some are heavy with curls of mohair woven all over their surface, and just escape looking like imitations of real fur.

Fringed materials are prominent and have circles of fringe, or lines straight and interrupted, double and treble. Shiny artificial silk fringes adorn some woollens in little tassels or straight bands.

Many woollen fringes are sleekly combed, decorous as a well-groomed coiffure; others are shaggy and tousled as a tomboy's head. A number of woollens are closely and evenly fringed all over in self-colour.

TULIP COLOURS

Colour contrasts will play a much less important role in the winter woollens than they did in the spring output. But wonderful ranges of shade—sometimes attaining the figure of 160 tones in the same fabric—are not uncommon.

Colours in one house have been inspired by the tulip fields of Holland, by the greys, greens, and blues of shadow upon a mountain lake and the delicacy of September sunshine upon yellowing trees.

FASHION NOTES

The Stars And Their Dresses

Joan Crawford has just designed for herself an evening bag made out of the same flowered material as her new formal. One large daisy forms each side of the bag, which, of course, is in blue and white.

Jean Harlow was the centre of all eyes at a recent Hollywood formal. The "brownette" star wore a straw-berry-iced, oiled silk wrap in the form of a floor-length cape with an attached hood. Her evening frock and coiffure were visible through the thin, pink silk.

Norma Shearer introduced a charming new fashion recently when she appeared wearing a man-tailored suit of white, and with it a blouse and toque fashioned from navy and white bandana handkerchiefs.

Eleanor Powell dances and walks to the jingle of bells.

The dancing star wears two bracelets, one on each wrist, ornamented by tiny bells. The bracelet on the left wrist is toned lower than that on the right, so that the movement of both hands results in harmonious chords. Quite tricky.

Tortoise-shell has not entered the realm of time-pieces.

Norma Shearer appeared recently wearing a smart, tortoise-shell clip from which hung a smart little round watch in a shell case. These new type watches are designed especially to accompany tweed sportswear, and their colours blend beautifully with the popular shades of tan and brown.

It's accessory season, and Joan Crawford has introduced the latest thing in novelty bracelets.

It is fashioned from white silk cord, spiraled with solid gold bandings. From the banding hang tiny golden bells that tinkle when Joan raises her arm.

A hip-length smock of yellow oilekin is Jean Harlow's contribution to beach novelties. With the smock, which slips conveniently over a bathing suit, Jean wears a stock-type scarf of ocean blue oiled silk. A bright coloured wooden fish serves an attractive scarf pin.

Handkerchief linen lingerie to match summer frocks is decidedly new and chic.

Jeanette MacDonald has ordered complete sets in all of the popular summer colours. The lingerie is beautifully tailored, with touches of hand-embroidery. Each piece bears her monogram.

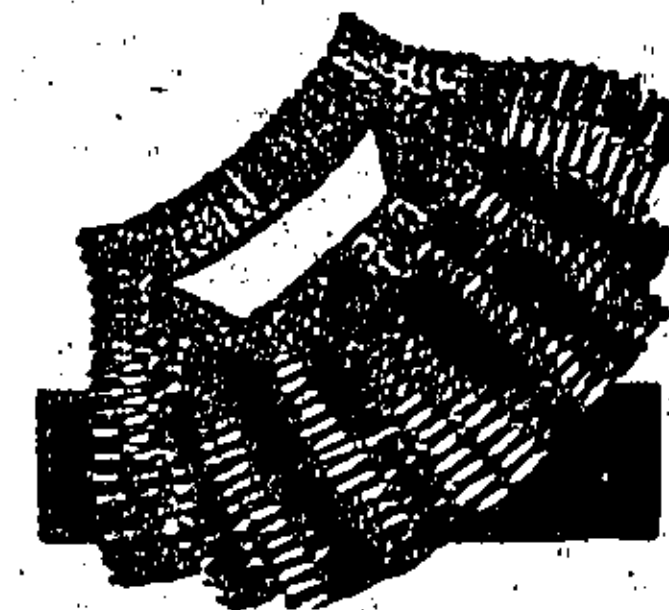

HANDBAGS FOR HOLIDAYS

The best styles in handbags now carry a note of brilliant colour to relieve the neutral tones in straw and linen. Beige lined and trimmed with scarlet leather, with a scarlet fob or tab hanging over the fastening with the single initial of the owner, is chic without being too smart for the beach or country ensemble in beige, grey or brown.

Many of these bags in all sizes and coloured leather trappings have a gay little cotton or silk scarf. Subdued shades in linen or flannel are lined with the brightest of coloured patterned cotton or silk crepes to match the scarf. The popular grey flannel with navy printed crepe linings and trappings looks well with a scarf and felt beret.

Yellow and green are favourites in holiday shades. A flat beach-bag that could hold the family's sea wardrobe is of household floor-cloth with rope handle and fastening. This is lined with bright green rubber.

An idea for bathing-boxes is that made in stiff coloured American cloth, lined with the same in a contrasting bright tone, but all in Chinese colouring as are the initials on the outside.

"QUEER STYLES AND FANCIFUL DRESSES"

No Permanent Waves Or Wasp Figures In Changsha

Changsha
If feminine problems are delicate, this is especially true with their dress.

Hardly had the dispute over the ban on queer attire between the fair sex and municipal authorities in Canton been satisfactorily settled, when Changsha was plunged into the same controversy.

Like their sisters in other cities Changsha women are alleged to be fond of attractive and even fanciful accoutrement. So high-heels, short sleeves, curled hair, streamlined dress, lip-stick, etc., became the vogue.

But if their dresses were attractive, they attracted the attention of a wrong person, Mr. Chow Han, a staunch "moralist," who is director of the local bureau of public safety and concurrently a sectional chief in the Changsha New Life Movement Promotion Association. Frowning upon the ultra-modern styles, Mr. Chow imposed a ban on all queer apparel.

WAVING MACHINES

To prevent further hair-curling he ordered all waving machines in barber shops be confiscated. But the ultra-modern fashionists were not without their counter-measure. Before the time-limit for confiscation expired, many had their hair permanent-waved.

But rumors were then rife that police had been instructed to shave their heads, if they were found again with curly hair.

Driven to despair, the feminists started a revolt against the "despotic" ban on their so-called odd garbs. Under the leadership of the Changsha Women's Association a strong protest was filed with the Changsha New Life Movement Promotion Association over the ban.

In brief, the protest argues that improvement of the art of dressing is a natural outcome of the advancement of material civilization.

vancement of material civilization. Therefore in all modern countries in the West women's dresses are becoming more and more artistic and fanciful. Since no restrictions whatever are placed on modern styles in Western Countries, why should Chinese authorities take exception?

However sound the feminists might think of their argument, the protest was flatly turned down by the New Life Movement Promotion Association, and the ban was not lifted. But the bitter controversy is assuming wider and wider proportions.

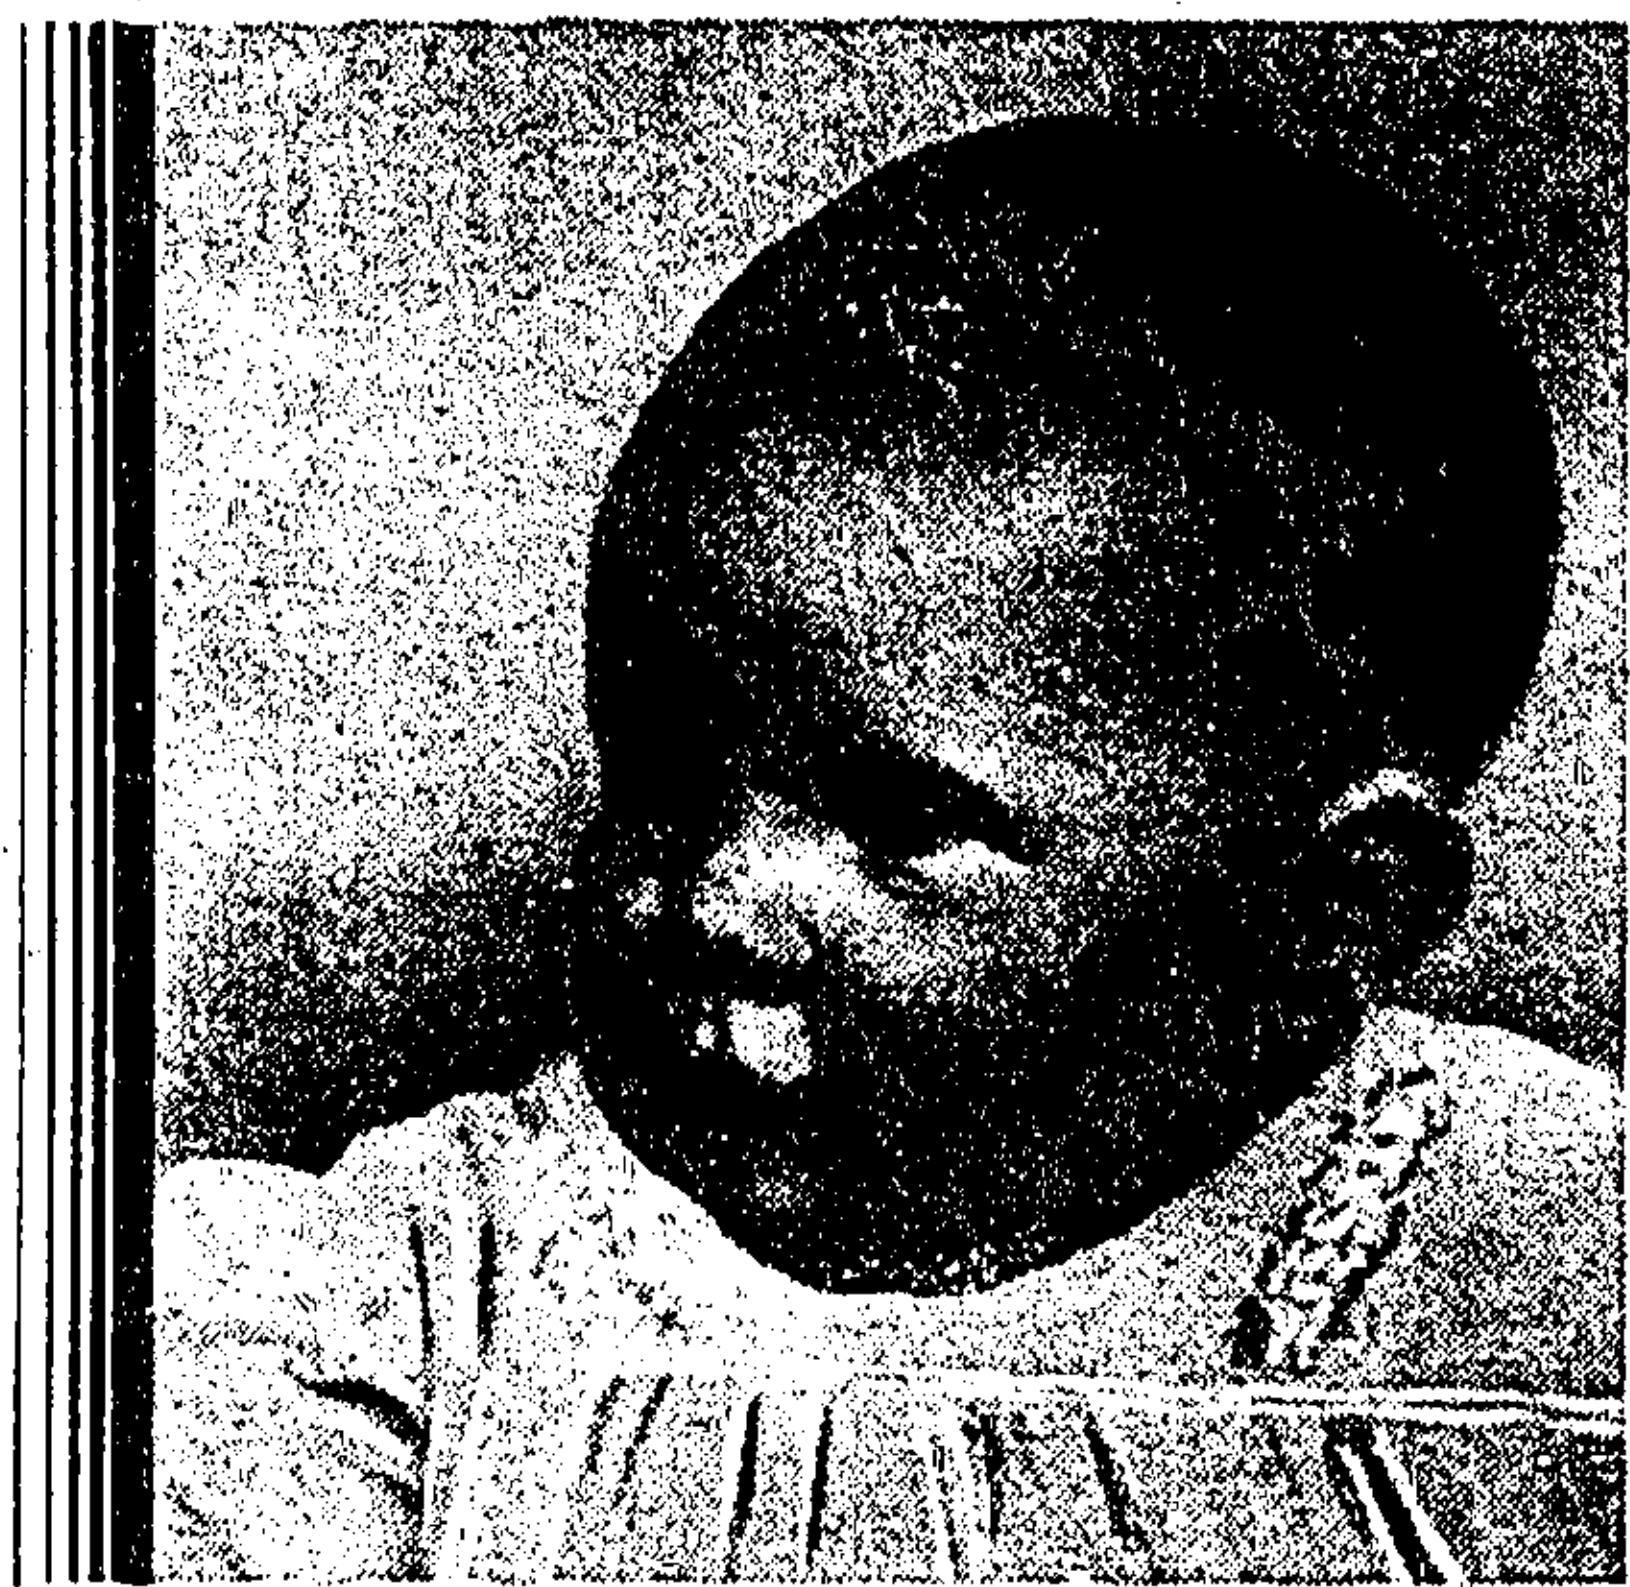

TWO HOSTILE CAMPS

In general, two hostile camps are pitched. On the one hand are the moralists rallying under the New Life banner, bitterly denouncing the unusual styles as demoralizing. On the other hand are the feminists, especially ultra-modern fashionists, under the leadership of the Changsha Women's Association, who want to be left alone.

Upon her arrival in Changsha in the middle of last month, Miss Kuan Mei-yung, inspector of the National Association for the Promotion of the New Life Movement in Nanking, was invited to express her opinion on the knotty question in a public lecture at the local women's association. Miss Kuan informed the audience that no order restricting the style of dressing has even been issued by the national association and opined that such a trivial matter should not be taken so seriously.

Instead of settling the bickering, these words of hers, however, further fanned the controversy as they aroused the bitter attack of her colleagues in the local New Life Movement chapter, who charged her with having misunderstood and misinterpreted the meaning of "new life."

The dispute is still pending.—Central News Agency.

NEW MATERIALS AND COLOURS

Materials are the interesting point in fashion at the moment. Rodier has made a collection of plain woollen materials in rich colours: wine-reds, raspberry-red, spinach-green, slate-blue, and dark brown running to beige. Fringed materials are prominent in this collection. Some have lines and stripes of fringe in the same colour. A fringe may be straightly combed or be knotted. A plain width of material may have a line of fringe running down the middle. Woollen crêpes have silk patterns, circles, curls, and fringes of silk and wool mixed.

A pleasant material with a suede surface is called peau de marmotte. It is cashmere with a duvetyn finish. In two well tested woollens known as Raipella and Granissa there are 160 different shades of colour. This is the first time that Rodier has had so many shades in one material. Among the few figured materials for winter coats is one with a woollen ground into which is woven long, shiny, polecat hairs and here and there square designs of mohair which look like astrakhan. Timbrah is a new woollen, the pattern on which is derived from postage stamps. The dark ground is broken with lozenges of bright colours set in straight lines, equally placed and so woven as to look as if they were darned. Some of the Rodier woollens, as is the custom of the firm, are designed specially for scarves, blouses, and waist-coats. The most recent of these is a soft mixture of artificial silk and cashmere.

IN SILK

In silk, Ducharme has some lovely materials with rough surfaces. There are many quilted satins, cloqués and ottomans, all heavy and stately. Reversible materials are also much used. Real silk and artificial silk are put together in heavy crêpes. An advantage of the cloqué materials this season is that the blister is produced in the weaving and so does not stretch away from the foundation. Lamé is very much used. Gold threads are woven into silks and satins in such a way as to make them look as if they had been sprinkled with gold. There is a certain gold thread jersey of real beauty which is being used by several of the leading dress designers. Gold and silver together are woven into some silks to the design of a big dragon fly and, as the light falls on it, it looks all silver or all gold. Some of the ottoman silks are ribbed with gold; black grosgrain silks, too, have gold and brilliantly coloured threads running through them so that they glint and gleam like butterfly wings in the sun. Gaufered muslins have big flower designs. Persian designs are commonly used on lamés. Velvets are both plain and figured. The new velvets are 1 metre 30 centimetres wide. Cloqué velvets have a surface which is both dull and shiny on the same side. Some of the printed silks look as if they had been painted in oil.

Knitted and crocheted clothes will be worn during the autumn and winter. Pule Valence has some speckled silk tailormades for the afternoon, all of which are fitted with an under-skirt of strong crêpe de Chine to ensure their keeping a good shape. They are also specially stretched when finished for the same purpose. Square shoulders mark the jackets, and many of these have no collar and but one revers. The buttons used by Paule Valence are all made by her. Covered with wool or silk, tooled in leather, made of china and painted, they are decorative and unusual.

The evening clothes are interesting. Gold and silver threads are cleverly worked into slim dresses, with close-fitting caps, to match. Jackets are made of silks in bright colours, Black wool and cellophane are used for the cocktail dresses, which have long, tight sleeves.

ROUND THE SHOPS

LANE, CRAWFORD'S

The Ladies' Salon have just received a new shipment of very attractive bathing costumes, we suggest an early visit, as all suits have been priced exceptionally low to encourage the swimmers to buy another to replace the much used costume of the beginning of the season. Also included in the same shipment are some very smart white summer felts, in large and small brims, high and shallow crowns, plain as well as fancy trimmings, so with such a selection one is sure to get something suitable to complete the autumn outfit.

GORDONS

FLOWER HEADDRESSES

Headress fashions won by summer brides are now inspiring the latest evening hair dressing styles. Lilies of the valley, rosebuds and gardenias to match the colour of the wearer's dress are banked high on the forehead.

The Victorian chignon is revived in the clusters of flowers placed in the nape of the neck, which is a variation of the same fashion. They can be twined among rows of formal curls, or arranged like a "bun" at the back of a smoothly waved head.

Bridesmaids' fashions also show their influence on evening hairdressing. Juliet caps of massed blossoms are being chosen by debutantes to wear at dances. Tiny blossoms are arranged on trellis work, and the caps are set towards the back of the head and surrounded by brushed-up curls.

SEASIDE FASHIONS

Linen tweed is being used for beach suits. A Lanvin model has a cross-over top in white linen tweed, and short, plus-fours of the same material.

Here are some other ideas noted on the French plages: An Air Force blue crash beach dress, with a white linen applique on the bodice representing a sea-gull in flight.

A beach coat in thick white crash, full length, cut like a Russian tunic, and edged with three rows of narrow navy braid.

For the promenade: white wool coat with yoke-shaped collar of white and black lamb. A white wool bathing suit with shoulder-strings of brown plaited leather.

A SURVEY OF MILLINERY SELECTIONS

The small or medium-sized hat is the best choice—the newest Breton sailors, or small toreador shapes with crowns of black, dark blue or brown panamae, the brims of which are gaufered, are charming.

In the riquant pork-pie or bowler styles there are many coarse cre or lacquered straw, being mixed with a touch of petersham in colour and a veil adjusted in some fantastic fashion.

In the case of the bowler the upturned lining is generally of a lighter tone. Sometimes the severe veil is tied tightly round. Rather a hard shape, and once its novelty has gone it should give way to a more becoming style. However, it does not do to anticipate the finish of any popular fancy when we remember the long reign, still continued, of the beret. Possibly the bowler variety may go on appearing.

There is a distinct tendency to the squared front about the holiday sports peaked hat, whether made in wool, straw or tweed. In most instances I think the back is prettier than the front aspect.

Berets also take on this square look. I prefer the "real college" mortar-board style, although it cannot be termed practical. The well-fitted crown with a softer folded beret-top in fine fabrics or linen-straws are more comfortable for most forms of sporting, and semi-sporting, headgear.

Bright and neat are the scarves or jabots made of spotted or striped surati and taffetta to match a folded beret—or boater, trimmed with a similar gay design. Red and white, navy or green and white spot suggest the welcomed note of colour with dark dresses, or with the many grey variations.

The French are using a lot of pale tangerine and tomato shades for straws and silks; also blues of every hue. There is a feeling for dark brown millinery. Some of the smaller, shady shapes in fine Chinese straws, or the panamae look well in a really dark brown with simple bandeaux of beige and brown petersham, or made gay with flower of many colours.

Lovely hats with crowns completely composed of feathers with spray of coloured flowers under the brim, will be among the Ascot modes.

PORTUGAL'S PART

IN THE SPANISH TURMOIL

London, Aug. 12. Following the announcement that Mr. Ogilvie Forbes, Counsellor at the British Embassy in Madrid who is on leave in England, is going back to Madrid to take charge of the Embassy in absence of the Ambassador who moved to the summer quarters before the outbreak of the civil war and is now near St. Jean de Luz. It is stated that Sir Charles Wingfield, British Ambassador in Lisbon is interrupting his leave to return to Portugal. It is likely he will sail from England this weekend.

From her adjacency to the areas of the disturbance, Portugal takes an important place, among the powers who are involved in the negotiation on the French initiative of an understanding regarding nonintervention in the Spanish conflict. The Portuguese Government has already given its adherence in principle to these proposals, but, in doing so, raised one or two points upon which replies have now gone to Lisbon.

In England there is a sympathetic comprehension of anxieties of the Portuguese Government in face of what remains unpredictable development of the present troubles. Comment is made as these aspects of her position give Portugal a strong interest in the early and successful outcome of the French efforts in support of which the British Government has been active for a general agreement against intervention.

It is also recalled that the eventualities involving danger to Portuguese security are provided for in the Covenant of the League of Nations. The British attitude in such circumstances would be defined as well by the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty—British Wireless.

Large Increase

ANGLO-JAPANESE RELATIONS

London, July 20. Further light is thrown on the present position of the smuggling traffic in North China by the latest official returns, which cover two consecutive weeks. A continued increase, this time of some 30 per cent, is shown in goods smuggled from the North into the rest of China. This suggests that the preventive services organized by the Nanking Government on the railways running south from Peking and Tientsin are beginning to work with some efficiency, writes a correspondent.

The indication given by Mr. Horouchi, the Japanese Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, to Sir Robert Clive, the British Ambassador in Tokyo, that "the time was approaching when, if the Chinese reduced their tariffs—some of which were excessive—the evil of smuggling would disappear," recalls Sir Frederick Leith-Ross's views on tariff reduction. In the statement he made at Shanghai on June 23 he expressed the hope that the Chinese Government would consider whether the present tariff could not be lowered, so far as that was possible, without reducing revenue. During the depression, he observed, a number of the tariff rates had been pushed up to a point at which they produced no revenue and merely prohibited legitimate trade. It is felt in London that tariff reduction is, as Mr. Horouchi suggested, a matter for direct discussion between Tokyo and Nanking.

The "Asahi's" plea for a revival of Anglo-Japanese friendship, is acknowledged by competent judges in this country to be representative of a school of thought which has many influential adherents in Japan.

What is in doubt is not the sincerity of those who support the "Asahi's" appeal, but their ability, as men of moderation, to keep the extremists within bounds. Friendship, in other words, must be built on deeds. Words, however friendly, are not enough. Some recent happenings, such as the anti-British agitation that attended the inquiry into the death of a Japanese officer in Peking, and the torture of Mr. Russell, a British Indian, in Manchukuo, seemed to reveal the extremists in full control.

"MELODY LINGERS ON"

Whatever your cinema tastes and preferences, you'll thrill to Reliance's "The Melody Lingers On," which brought Josephine Hutchinson and George Houston, Hollywood's handsome new opera star screen "and" to the King's Theatre to-day.

For Edward Small and Harry M. Goetz who guide the destinies of Reliance Pictures and gave us Robert Donat in "The Count of Monte Cristo" last season, offer film fans another great discovery in another great picture.

Based on the novel by Lowell Brentano, "The Melody Lingers On" paints in telling strokes the story of a woman who found that a great career could not fill the gap left in her heart by the loss of a great love.

Josephine Hutchinson is seen as Ann Prescott, a beautiful young American girl studying music abroad, who falls in love with Salvini (Houston), a famous opera singer on leave from the front.

They are separated by the grim hand of war. Ann has a child, Guido, and faced with the prospect of placing him in an alien environment, she leaves him in a convent. The war over, she learns that Salvini has been killed. The years bring her great renown as a musician. Then, she learns that Guido has been adopted and reared as their own son by the Turinas.

EARLY TO BED

Lucien Littlefield, who plays the only even moderately "heavy" role in the plot, is co-author of the latest Mary Boland-Charlie Ruggles-farce, "Early to Bed," now showing at the Alhambra Theatre. Littlefield is cast as an eccentric supposed millionaire, under treatment at the sanatorium where Charlie and Mary spend their honeymoon, "Lake Oskawookabogee Lodge." Script for the picture was written by him in collaboration with Chandler Sprague.

In "Early to Bed," Ruggles appears as a mouse-like clerk, for twenty-six years employed by the Matchless Eye Company, makers of glass eyes, and for twenty years engaged to Mary Boland. They marry as the picture opens and leave on their honeymoon. Mary has spent two decades dreaming of a honeymoon to Niagara Falls. Because a big glass eye buyer is at Lake Oskawookabogee, and because a bonus has been offered to whoever sells him, Charlie heads instead for the sanatorium.

No sooner have the newlyweds arrived than the laugh-filled plot gets under way. Charlie reveals that he is a sleep-walker, roaming about the fields during the night. A jewel robbery and a murder occur; Charlie thinks that he has committed them in his sleep.

Before the glass eye sale is completed and the mystery cleared up, the pair have wound through a farce, marking a new Ruggles-Boland high.

FIGHTING STOCK

Although the humour in "Fighting Stock" now showing at the Star Theatre, is very much "the mixture as before," the ingredients of this laughter tonic are different from any others in Ben Travers' farces. Tom Walls and Ralph Lynn in this highly amusing farce advise and succour distressed ladies. Their strange ideas and curious methods provoke hilarity. Once again Robertson Hare endeavours, without great success, to be a steady influence. Frayed tempers and broken heads are but light incidents in the plan of the story which swings along with fine speed from the moment that Tom Walls fishes in preserved water until Robertson Hare plunges into the same stream to extinguish a fire which is burning his trousers.

a wealthy couple. She cultivates Turina in an effort to persuade him to let her have the singing career he desires, and, after many heartaches and conflicts, Ann finds all the bitter empty years of yearning swept away on that great night when she sees her son reliving his father's triumph on the stage of the La Scala Opera House.

Josephine Hutchinson has never been better and George Houston is a "find" indeed, bringing to film a rare combination of striking good looks, charm, acting ability and a magnificent baritone voice which is heard in the Toreador Song from "Carmen" and "Ritorno di Sordani" famous Italian folk song.

The stars are supported by a uniformly splendid cast, including John Halliday, Mona Barrie, Helen Westley, Laura Hope Crews, David Scott, William Harrigan, Walter Kingsford and Ferdinand Gottschalk.

"UNDER TWO FLAGS": A NEW FOREIGN LEGION FILM

London, July 28.
Ouida's famous novel, which comes next Sunday to the Tivoli screen, has been made into a talkie which can be recommended to all connoisseurs of films of the Foreign Legion. One would call it an epitome, were it not that epitomes are usually brief. This film is not brief. It runs for two hours, and during that time it puts on the screen everything that has ever been in previous films of the Foreign Legion. There is the fort, ambushed by Arabs. There is the sardonic Englishman "whose presence in the Legion is one of those mysteries which the Legionaries just accept." He is acted by Ronald Colman, who long ago was just such another Englishman in "Beau Geste." For good value there is a sheikh with whom he was at Oxford, and there is, of course, Cigarette, the local estaminet girl, who is shot at the head of the cavalry she has led to the rescue of the troops holding the fort.

It is, in truth, her fault that they have been ambushed, for Commandant Doyle is in love with her. He thinks that Sergeant Victor is his rival, and therefore the sergeant is sent on "hazardous expeditions into Arab-infested sections of the desert." Therefore, further, men are moved down by hordes of Arabs, and the entire company is put into grave danger. But no one minds this by the end of the film, for the English Sergeant Victor is able to marry the lovely Lady Venetia, and Cigarette, having provided the necessary love rivalry, is honoured with the posthumous award of a medal. It will be seen that while "La Bandera" was almost everything that Foreign Legion films should be, "Under Two Flags" is everything they ever have been.

We miss the abandon of Ouida's style, and it is unfortunate that much that was remarkable in the book becomes commonplace on the film. The convention of the screen is responsible for that. But, on the other hand, Claudette Colbert, Victor McLaglen, and the rest of a large cast act with entire understanding of that convention, and so the film is a collector's piece, conforming rigidly to the traditions for this type of craftsmanship. "MAD BUSINESS" OF FILM-MAKING

Mr. Fairbanks Tells
A Judge

London, July 29.
Mr. Douglas Fairbanks, jun., the film star, yesterday explained some of the mysteries of film production to Mr. Justice Goddard in the King's Bench Division.

Mr. Fairbanks was giving evidence on behalf of Criterion Film Productions Ltd. which he had formed. The company was sued by Mr. Akos Tolnay, of Radnor Hall, Epsom, and Mr. James Balliol Williams, of Linden-gardens, Nottingham Hill Gate, on a contract of Aug. 15, 1935, by which they were to write the scenario and script of an adaptation of Jeffery Farnol's novel "The Amateur Gentleman." They alleged that the company had repudiated the contract, and they claimed damages, including balance of £350 alleged to be due under the agreement.

The company alleged breaches of contract by the plaintiffs in not delivering material to time—which was denied—and counter-claimed damages.

The Judge had expressed himself puzzled by previous evidence. This indicated that before the film was "shot," writers produced a synopsis, a treatment, a continuity, and a "shooting" script, and that what some people in the profession called one thing, was called another by others.

"How a film gets written is one of the mysteries of modern life," he said to Mr. Fairbanks. "Like Tolnay, it grows—and how it grows nobody quite knows."

Mr. Fairbanks, referring to the varying customs in what he described as "this mad business," said: "Almost on any film there are 'story conferences' which seem interminable. They seem to go on and on, sometimes even after a picture is started."

"ALL THE BEST BITS"
"I have seen films that are sometimes written right on the set while 'shooting' is going on. I remember sitting on a set for three days, made-up and in costume, while we were writing the script ourselves!"

"In one film I should say that, from the time I was first engaged to the time it was finished, I saw at least two, and possibly three, different outlines with different endings and different 'middle' bits. In the end the film consisted of the best bits of all those stories."

Mr. Fairbanks added that three "shooting" scripts were provided for a play shown to the trade on Monday night. They were by three different authors.

"One author was engaged to write a complete 'shooting' script, and that didn't meet with the approval of all of us," he explained. "Another author was then engaged to write in collaboration with us and that was afterwards altered, so that most of the dialogue and situations were different."

"The work of the first author was paid for, though it was not used. Altogether about five scenario writers worked on the film." The hearing was adjourned until to-morrow.

FLYING THRILLS AT ALHAMBRA

"DEVIL'S SQUADRON"

The Columbia picture, "Devil's Squadron" showing at the Alhambra as the current attraction, is dedicated to test pilots who are little known men but upon whom the future of aviation depends. The leading players are Richard Dix and Karen Morley, and the supporting cast includes Henry Morrison, Lloyd Nolan, Shirley Ross, Gene Moran and Thurston Hall.

Dix and Nolan, two test pilots, fall in love with Miss Morley, Dix, because of an unjust stigma attached to his name and because he refuses to hurt Nolan, superintendent of the airport, who gave Dix his chance to make good again, is unable to tell Miss Morley that he loves her. But close association with death amid flaming planes and strained nerves, changes much, and the story goes on to a dramatic climax.

The film has many exceptionally fine shots taken in flight and the air-minded with find much that will interest them—"Redinam."

Incident At King's Procession

CONTEMPT OF COURT

London, July 30.
Fines for contempt of court in newspaper reports and a news-reel account of the incident on Constitution Hill on July 18, when the King was riding back from Hyde Park after presenting colours to the Guards, were inflicted by a King's Bench Divisional Court yesterday.

Rules nisi of attachment for contempt of court were down for hearing before the Court, which was composed of Justices Swift, Humphreys and Goddard.

The respondents, who appeared to show cause against the rules being made absolute, were:

Frank Leonard Fitzhugh, editor of the "Evening News," and Associated Newspapers Limited, the publishers.
Arthur Christiansen, editor of the "Daily Express," and London Express Newspapers Limited.
J. H. Hutchinson, manager of Hendon Central Cinema Limited (proprietors of the Ambassador Cinema, Hendon Central), Hendon Central Cinema Limited, and Gaumont British Distributors Limited.

After hearing counsel the court fined the editors and proprietors of the newspapers £200 each—a total of £1,000 each newspaper—and costs.

The apology of Mr. Hutchinson and the Hendon Central Cinema, Ltd. was accepted, and they were required only to pay costs.

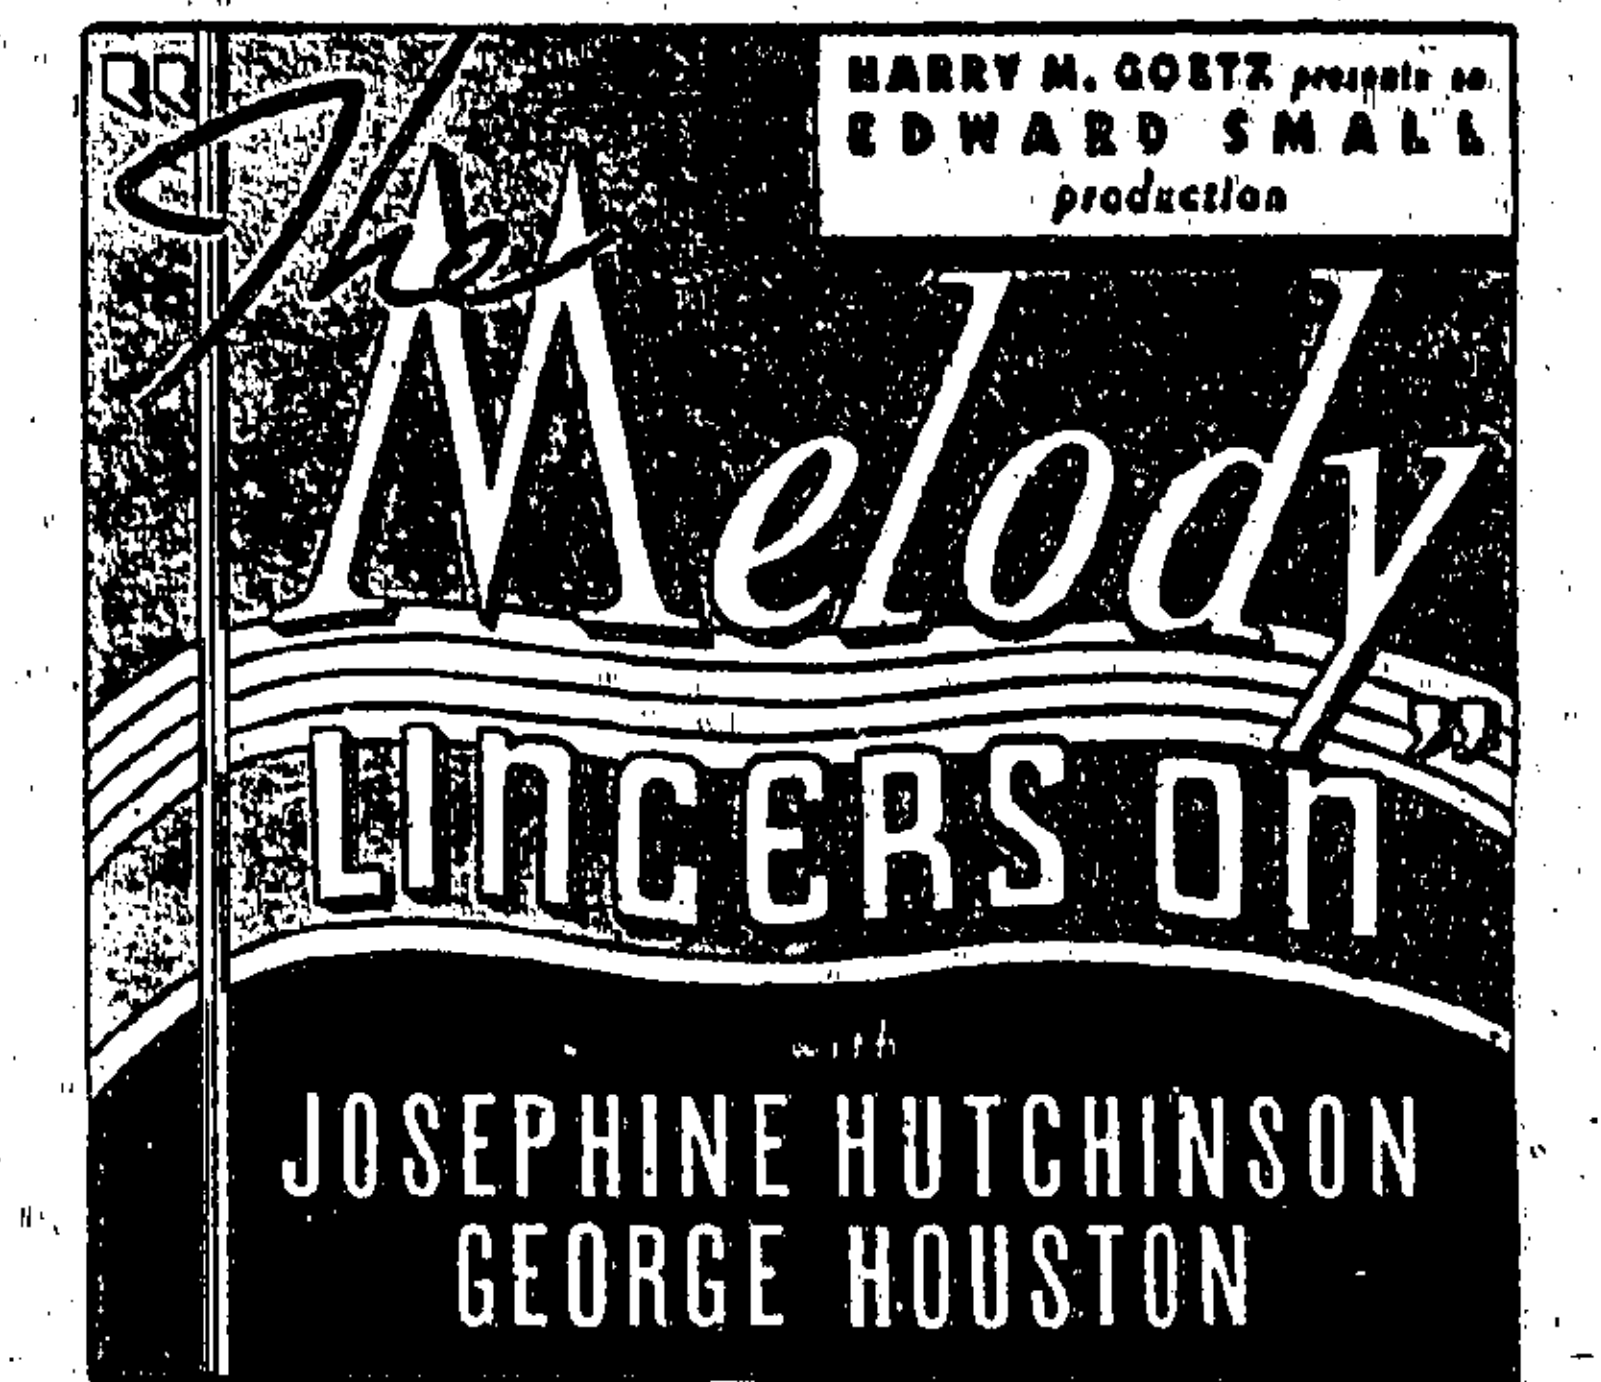

Gaumont British Distributors, Ltd. were fined £50 and ordered to pay costs.

contempt was publishing, on July 17, an article "calculated to prejudice the fair trial" of George Andrew McMahon. He recalled that following the Constitution Hill incident McMahon was arrested and charged at Bow-street.

Counsel read an affidavit in which Mr. Fitzhugh, the editor, accepted responsibility, expressed regret, and offered apologies. He added that the "Evening News" had no intention of prejudicing McMahon's trial, but was actuated by a genuine desire to allay the anxiety which the incident had caused at home and abroad.

Mr. Justice Swift, delivering the judgment of the court, as above, said proceedings for contempt of court of this nature were taken to prevent undue interference with the administration of justice, and not to vindicate the dignity of the court or any person.

Sir Patrick Hastings, K.C., for the editor and publishers of the "Daily Express," expressed the regret of his clients and offered apologies. In an affidavit Mr. Christiansen said that inquiries he caused to be made led him to the conclusion that an article should be published to relieve public anxiety.

Mr. Justice Humphreys delivered judgment as above.

In the case of the news-reel, Mr. Kerstein, solicitor for McMahon, stated that he saw at the cinema a film with the caption, "Attempt on the King's life." He wrote to the Gaumont British Co., and was assured that the film would be withdrawn, and if re-exhibited the offending caption would be removed.

He visited the cinema again three days later and saw that the caption had not been removed. Apologies from all concerned were read, and it was explained that a letter had been sent to all cinemas showing the film, but apparently the letter to this cinema was not received.

Mr. Justice Swift, giving judgment, said it was necessary to draw the attention of cinemas and film distributors to the fact that the film was no more immune from the rules dealing with contempt of court than newspapers.

CHARLES "SWENSON"

MONEY LENDERS IN A CIVIL ACTION

Claim Quashed

SEQUEL TO VERDICT OF PRIVATE ARBITRATION

In the Summary Court yesterday morning, Balla Singh claimed $500 from Ganga Singh, but the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, K.C., gave judgment for the defendant, with costs.

Mr. D. McCallum appeared for the plaintiff, and the defendant was represented by Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios.

Mr. McCallum said that the plaintiff claimed the return of $500 from the defendant, being money entrusted to him for safe-keeping on November 8, 1932, but which the defendant had failed to return. Due notice had been given the defendant on June 3, 1936.

The disputing parties came to an agreement to allow five arbitrators, who were money-lenders, to decide the outcome. The arbitrators were: Kir Singh, Emrik Singh, Kishin Singh, Saporan Singh and Ishar Singh.

Mr. Remedios said that before the trial the plaintiff and the defendant came to that agreement, which was subsequently entered into. The matter had been thoroughly gone into and the award was made in writing. He did not think that the arbitrators had gone in excess of their authority.

The two counsels went into an argument on arbitration, and ended with His Lordship bringing the case to formal proof of submission.

ARBITRATION AGREED

Mr. Remedios brought Ganga Singh to the witness-box, who deposed that he was served with a writ on June 15, 1936. After the service of the writ he came into an agreement with the plaintiff. That was dated June 22, 1936. They agreed to refer to five arbitrators and to abide with their decision on the dispute. Both of them signed the agreement, and the meeting was a Money Lenders Association. The decision was made in writing and signed. The arbitrators had questioned both of them, and afterwards, read out to them the decision, which the plaintiff accepted.

His Lordship interrupted the witness by saying that there was no stamp on the document, but Mr. Remedios replied that, in all probability, the arbitrators knew nothing about it.

The witness continued with saying that after their signatures had been affixed to the document, they shook hands, and the plaintiff had a drink of hard liquor, but he had a spit drink (laughter).

In cross-examination the defendant, Mr. McCallum asked him if he was a money-lender, and the defendant answered in the affirmative. He continued by saying that the Money Lenders Association was situated at 5, D'Agular Street, first floor. He knew Saporan Singh lived there at the time, and had been a friend of his for a great many years. Four of the arbitrators were money-lenders, but the fourth, Kishin Singh, was a police guard on board a ship. Emrik Singh brought the plaintiff to the meeting.

The award was written in the Punjabi language.

ONE ABSENTEE

Only one arbitrator was not present when the plaintiff arrived, and that was Kishin Singh, but he arrived when the award was signed. Saporan Singh asked plaintiff the questions about the dispute, as he was asked also. There were no notes taken. After the questioning, they agreed to abide with the decision of the arbitrators, and a paper was drawn up by Ishar Singh. After the signature, the decision was given to them, but the award was not written down until June 22, 1936.

The submission and the award had been written by the same man, but he could not understand the contents of either of the documents nor did he know what was written on the papers. The arbitrators had argued that the plaintiff's claim was entirely false, but they had found that he had, as a fact, borrow $500 from plaintiff, of which sum he had returned all but $125. He had every intention to repay that sum to plaintiff, but he considered himself bound by arbitration.

Kir Singh was looked upon as the President of the Money Lenders Association. He had heard that the President had revealed a letter from Messrs. Kishin and Com-

FORGED BANK NOTES

TRICK TO PALM OFF REVEALED

A sentence of 'six months' hard labour was imposed on Yip Chiu, 34, a travelling trader, living at No. 72, Stone Nullah Lane, when he appeared before Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Court yesterday charged with the possession of forged banknotes, namely one $10 note, and one $5 note of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation.

Detective Sergeant Mann stated that on August 11 at 7.30 p.m. as a result of information P.C. C306 followed the defendant along Queen's Road. Defendant was accompanied by another Chinese male. This man went to a shop to select a hat, while the defendant remained across the street. The hat came to 90 cents and the man tendered a $10 note for payment. The shopkeeper pointed out that the note was a forgery and agreed to hold on to the note and the hat until the man could bring 90 cents. This unknown man went back to the defendant and returned with the required money. He took the note back across the road to the defendant and they then separated.

The defendant was followed and searched. On his person were found the two forged notes mentioned in the charge.

POLICE PLANS FOR THE CORONATION

Control of the police arrangements for next year's Coronation will be in the hands of Brigadier J. Whitehead, Assistant Commissioner at Scotland Yard, who, it was officially stated to-night, has taken over the duties carried out by Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Percy Laurie, who retired last week.

Brigadier Whitehead has hitherto been in charge of the "Ideas" Department of Scotland Yard, but in future he will have charge of the Mounted Branch and of police arrangements for all ceremonial processions and parades in London.

pany stating the dissatisfaction of the plaintiff with the decision of the arbitrators.

Mr. Remedios next called Ishar Singh to the witness box who deposed that he was a money-lender, and was present as an arbitrator in the dispute between the plaintiff and defendant. Five days prior to the meeting he had had a conversation with the two disputants. He wrote the submission and read it to both of them in a language they both understood, and the document was signed willingly. It was drawn up on June 22, 1936, and the award was written immediately afterwards. He contradicted defendant's statement that it was drawn up two days afterwards. Plaintiff and defendant accepted the award as final.

SIGNED BLANK PAPER

In cross-examination by Mr. McCallum the witness repeated that the plaintiff was perfectly willing to sign the award.

Kir Singh, the next witness for the defendant, said that he was also present when the document was signed, and it was he who read it to the plaintiff and defendant, which was understood thoroughly.

In replying to Mr. McCallum, the witness said that if the plaintiff said that he was not pleased with the verdict, he lied.

Mr. McCallum next called Balla Singh to the witness box. Plaintiff said that he was requested to attend the meeting at the Money-Lenders Association, ostensibly to settle the dispute between himself and defendant. He went with Emrik Singh. Kishin Singh arrived some time later. Saporan Singh suggested that the action could be settled out of court.

He deposed that when he signed the document it was only a blank piece of paper, but Saporan Singh told him that the sum of $125 would be paid him. However, before he signed he was promised the sum of $420. He had agreed to settle the dispute privately.

Mr. Remedios had nothing to ask the plaintiff.

Mr. McCallum submitted that the plaintiff had given good evidence as compared with that of defendant's. Plaintiff had left the decision of arbitration in good faith. The Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, was not satisfied with the evidence, and gave judgment in favour of the defendant, with costs.

AROUND THE COURTS

THEFT OF IRON

For stealing 13 sheets of galvanised iron from Beacon's Hill, the property of the War Department, Liu Fook, 39, who had two previous convictions for theft, was sent to prison for six weeks by Mr. Hims-worth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning. Insp. Chester Woods stated that the defendant was arrested on Wednesday night and at first stated he obtained the iron sheets from Shatin but on the way to the station changed his story and told the police that he took them from an old fort on Beacon's Hill. There was no proof that the defendant himself dismantled the sheets. Q.M.S. West, R.E., was the complainant.

WIDOW BOUND OVER

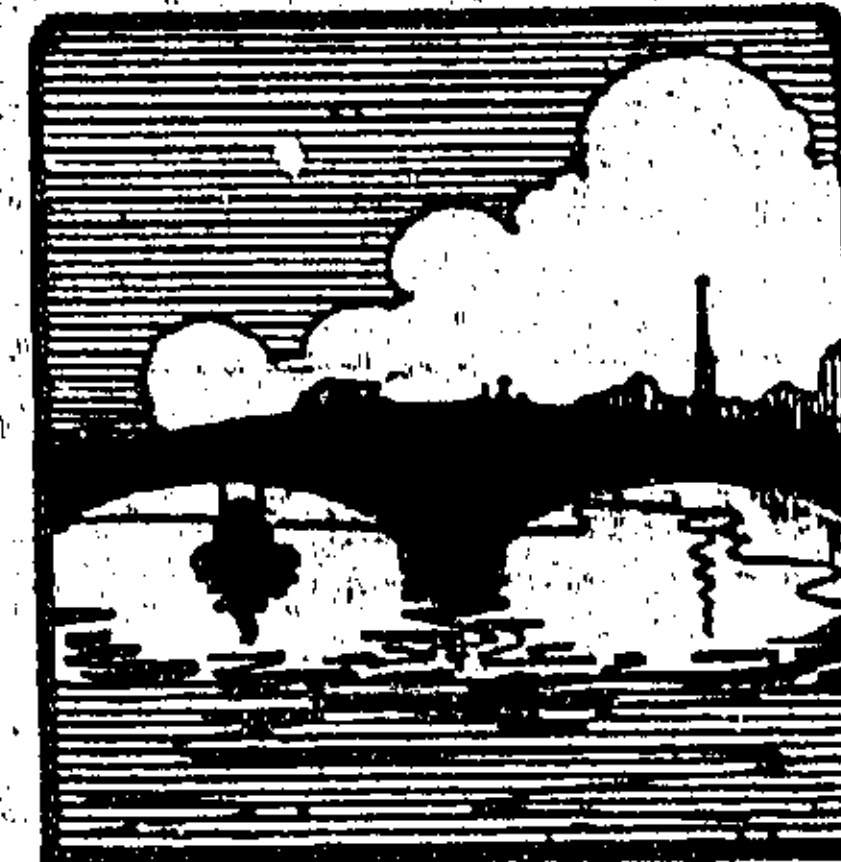

On charges of the theft of a gold pendant from the bathroom of the first floor of 26, Fuk Wah Street, and larceny by finding of the article, Li Pul Hing, 46-year-old widow, was bound over when she came before Mr. Himsworth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. Det.-Sergt. C. H. Goodwin stated that the defendant had every opportunity to return it to the rightful owner and it was not until the police were called in that she offered to find the pendant which she hid on a galvanised roof outside the bathroom. The complainant asked her if she had seen it and she denied it. The pendant was valued at $30.

FORGED TRAM TICKETS

Tsang Wai alias Tsang Fong, 21, and Chan Hoi, 26, were charged before Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Court yesterday with the possession of forged Tramway tickets.

The first defendant was charged with the possession of 300 three-cent tickets on August 10, the second defendant was charged with the possession of 206 tickets on August 10, and both defendants were charged with conspiring to defraud the Hong Kong Tramway Company by circulating the said tickets between July 27 and August 10.

Inspector A. E. Carey stated that he was not sure whether the case was for committal. The evidence would take a long time to prepare. The case was remanded formally for one week.

REMOVING SAND

Ngai Yam, coolie, was bound over when he appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday charged with removing sand without a removal permit from the Director of Public Works. At the previous hearing the defendant stated he obtained the sand from a sand firm in Hung Hom district for $1.25 but admitted he had no permit. Insp. R. Shannon prosecuted. Mr. T. S. FATAL MOTOR ACCIDENT RECALLED

ENQUIRY HELD POLICE LOOKING FOR MORE WITNESSES

An enquiry was held yesterday at the Central Court into the circumstances surrounding the accident which occurred in King's Road on June 23 wherein Leung So, a Chinese motor car driver, was killed when the car overturned and completed a somersault. The other three passengers were uninjured.

The only witnesses to the accident were these passengers and the Police request any others who happened to see the accident to communicate with them.

Mr. W. Schofield was the Coroner, assisted by the following jury: Messrs. K. G. Blair (foreman), G. E. S. Thomson, and Leung Shui Wan.

Dr. G. H. Thomas, medical officer of the Government Civil Hospital, stated that on June 23, at 3.50 p.m. a Chinese male was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital, fully conscious, but could only move his head, the rest of his body being paralysed and insensative. He breathed with great difficulty and died the next morning about 4.25 a.m.

A post mortem revealed a large ragged wound in the scalp, with no other external injuries. Internally the skull and brain were not injured. There was a fracture of the second, or possibly the third cervical vertebra, though an X-ray while in life showed that the fifth vertebra was broken. The spinal chord was contused, discoloured and haemorrhagic. The other organs appeared normal.

WENT FOR A SWIM

Death, in the doctor's opinion was due to the fracture of the cervical vertebrae with injury to the spinal chord, causing paralysis, chiefly to the respiratory muscle.

Mr. M. Ingram, of the F.W.D., proved some plans of the Road at the scene of the accident.

Lai King Yan, stated that he was the owner of car No. 1800 and had had it for over a month. He had only had his licence for one month. Leung So, the deceased, was his chauffeur and had been in his employ for two months.

On June 23 witness and two friends were on their way to Shek-o for a swim. The deceased was sitting next to witness, who was driving. Witness was driving at about 35 m.p.h. along King's Road and when near the Commercial Press building, he saw a lorry coming out of a side street. The lorry continued its way giving no indication of what it was going to do. Witness had to swerve to the right to avoid a collision.

Witness applied the footbrake and while doing so noticed that the deceased had also applied the hand brake. The car tilted over to the left and turned over in a complete somersault. Witness got out of the car and opened the rear door which had become jammed. Seeing that the chauffeur was unable to get out, witness and a friend went and opened the door and assisted the injured man to the sidewalk, where a Portuguese gentleman came along with a medicine case.

A passing doctor stopped and felt the injured man's pulse, and in fifteen minutes the ambulance arrived and conveyed the man to the hospital.

In answer to questions, witness said that he swerved to the wrong side and, seeing an approaching car, swung back again to the other side and in doing so overturned.

Whether the oncoming car stopped or not, witness could not say. He presumed that as the doctor was on the scene so soon, it must have been from one of the passing cars.

This unknown doctor has not been traced.

Leung Lin, wife of the deceased gave evidence of identification at the hospital.

The hearing was then adjourned until Wednesday, August 26, at 2.30 p.m.

FUSILIER OFFICERS ROBBED

Series Of Thefts From Rooms

MESS BOY CAUGHT

A series of thefts from the Royal Welch Fusiliers Officers' Mess, Hankow Barracks, Sham Shui Po, were related before Mr. E. Hims-worth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday when Yeung Wong, 21, mess boy, pleaded guilty to six charges of theft.

The complainants were Lieut. H. de B. Prichard, Lieut. E. C. Parker, Lieut. R. C. M. Kelly, Lieut. N. R. G. Bosanquet, Lieut. D. M. C. Prichard and Fusilier Jones, officers' batman.

Yeung frankly admitted stealing $10 the property of Lieut. H. de B. Prichard; $12.65 from Lieut. Parker; $15 from Lieut. Kelly; $15 from Lieut. Bosanquet; 25 cents, four Egyptian coins, 2 Ceylon ten cents pieces and one shilling and eight pence from Lieut. D. M. C. Prichard and $1 from Fusilier Jones.

TRAP LAID

Detective Sergeant C. H. Goodwin stated that the defendant was employed as a mess boy at the R.W.F. Officers' Mess at Sham Shui Po Camp commencing on July 20, until August 11 frequent sums of money had been missed from different officers' quarters. At about 11 a.m. on August 11 as a result of a theft on the previous day which was not specified in the charges, Fusilier Jones was instructed to place a dollar note (the number of which he noted) in a wallet in room 21 in the officers' quarters. Shortly after noon the note was missed. The defendant had been seen in the vicinity of the room, sweeping the verandah and he had also been seen near a dustbin. After the theft, had been discovered the dustbin was searched by Lieut. Bosanquet and the money belonging to the officer and Lieut. D. M. C. Prichard and the dollar note were found in an envelope in the bottom of the bin. The defendant was handed over to the police and he admitted the thefts. He took the police and pointed out each room from where he had stolen money. The money mentioned in the first three charges had been spent. The defendant had been employed as mess boy for three months at a salary of $17 a month. There was no criminal record against him.

The Magistrate, imposing a fine of $80 with the alternative of five weeks' hard labour remarked that he always regarded larceny by servant as more serious than an ordinary theft. The defendant had easy access to his masters' property.

LEAVE TO APPEAL GRANTED

TRADE MARK CASE ECHO

In respect of the case which was heard before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Court recently wherein the Paul Battery Company and the Sunlight Company were convicted of infringement of the labels of the Ever-ready batteries, Mr. D. L. Strellett made an application before His Worship yesterday for leave to appeal.

Mr. Strellett stated that the minimum value of the goods seized was $1,500 and as they were guaranteed to last for six months, he did not think that a surety would be required.

Mr. Hugh-Jones said that he could not recognise the seized batteries as security as they were not the product of the Ever-ready Company, and might thus be hard to dispose of. He suggested that either cash or a surety should be put up.

Mr. Schofield granted leave to appeal. The surety to be approved by the S.C.A.

After a few days' rest Mr. Chamberlain will go to Harrogate, in accordance with his original holiday plans. He was in the House of Commons as recently as Monday.

TYPHOON MISSES COLONY LUCKY ESCAPE

Hong Kong has been fortunate again in missing another typhoon, one which threatened this vicinity since a couple of days ago.

The forked-lightning display on Wednesday evening was enjoyed by many who saw the phenomena from the safety of their own homes, although some damage must have been done to the neighbouring hills, when, all reports will have come in to the authorities.

At mid-day yesterday the typhoon was hovering around Gap Rock, and it was feared by some that it was headed directly this way. However, the wind veered to the south-east of Hong Kong, and the public is definitely assured of a deviation of the course of that destructive storm.

When the residents of the Colony retired on Wednesday night, they were unpleasantly surprised to find the No. 7 typhoon signal hoisted the next morning. No. 7 was hoisted at 4.18 a.m. The signal was taken down in the afternoon.

ALL FOR SHELTER

The wind kept increasing in velocity, while all craft left the harbour, and the usual necessary precautions were taken to prepare for another typhoon, which have always proved disastrous in the past, especially to shipping vessels.

According to the last report yesterday the typhoon is situated at Lat. 21 N., and Long. 113 E., moving in a west-north-westerly direction.

The worst of the storm was at about ten o'clock yesterday morning, when the wind reached a velocity of 59 miles, with a barometer reading of 29.45, and falling steadily.

The only people who suffered any inconvenience were those who were marooned at Cheung Chau, through the suspension of ferry service. The only difficulty experienced with the local Star Ferry was the longer time it took for the helmsmen to tie up at the wharves.

NOTED AIRMAN TO MARRY

Mr. C. W. Scott's Romance With Actress

AUSTRALIAN GIRL

London, July 30. Mr. Charles W. A. Scott, the airman, has become engaged to Miss Greta Bremner, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. L. Bremner, of Melbourne, Australia. It was announced yesterday that they are to be married shortly.

Mr. Scott, with Mr. T. Campbell Black, won the Britain-Australia race in October, 1934, in record time. He has made three other record flights between the two countries. His marriage to Mrs. Kathleen Scott was dissolved last December.

Miss Bremner is an actress. Mr. Scott's co-pilot on the record flight, Mr. Campbell Black, also married an actress—Miss Florence Desmond.

"The wedding will take place in a few days' time," Mr. Scott told a reporter at his London flat yesterday. "I met Miss Bremner in Australia on my 1921 flight. Her sister is Miss Marie Bremner, who is a well-known actress there."

THE KING'S FIRST OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

To Make Protestant Declaration STATE CEREMONY ON NOV. 3

London, July 29. The King will make his first appearance in Parliament as Sovereign on Tuesday, Nov. 3, when he will open the new session.

Mr. Baldwin made this statement in the House of Commons yesterday, when, replying to a question, he informed Mr. Attlee that the House, which is to adjourn on Friday, would re-assemble on Thursday, Oct. 29, and be prorogued on the same day.

There will be a King's Speech at the prorogation ceremony, but it will be read by the Lord Chancellor, Viscount Hailsham.

On Tuesday, Nov. 3, the King will drive in state to Westminster, and will read his speech from the throne in the House of Lords.

The second throne, which was occupied by Queen Mary when the late King opened Parliament, has been removed, and King Edward will be alone on the dais.

The decision of the Government to call Parliament together again on October 29, and to wind up the present session on the same day, has caused some surprise.

It is due to the fact that should it become necessary to summon the two Houses to meet during the recess which begins on Friday, peers and M.P.s can, if Parliament is merely adjourned, be requested to reassemble after five days' notice. If Parliament were prorogued a longer time would be required.

THE DECLARATION
The law requires that the sovereign should make the accession declaration of the Protestant faith either at the Coronation ceremony, or at his first meeting with Parliament, whichever event comes first. The declaration will therefore be made on Nov. 3. It is as follows:

"I do solemnly and sincerely in the presence of God confess, testify and declare that I am a faithful Protestant, and that I will, according to the true intent of the enactments which secure the Protestant succession to the throne of my realm, uphold and maintain the said enactments to the best of my powers according to law."

The King received Mr. Eden, the Foreign Secretary, in audience at Buckingham Palace, yesterday.

Addresses from the House of Commons and the House of Lords were presented to his Majesty by Major Sir George Davis, Vice-Chamberlain of the Household, and by the Earl of Cromer, the Lord Chamberlain, having reference to the recent revolver incident in Constitution-Hill.

COLOURS FOR THE CORONATION

A NEW RED AND A NEW BLUE

London, July 30. The British Colour Council, of which Lord Derby is patron, and Mr. J. A. Milne is president, have been busy for some time on the question of colours for the Coronation. Ten special colours have been prepared which will be released as soon as possible in order that manufacturers may prepare for Coronation year. About 50 laboratory tests have been made to get the most beautiful shades, and old colours will be revived in new tones, owing much of their charm to the great advance in British dyeing during recent years.

The two most important colours are Coronation red and Coronation blue. The former is a rich crimson and is a blend of such reds as sword-belt red, heraldic red, the red of peers' robes, and tartan red. The result is a shade like a vivid peony. Coronation blue is also a blended colour and has been developed from Royal blue, Union Jack blue, and gentian blue. The other eight colours include a number of pastel tones and they have been chosen in such a way that they will be suitable for dress materials, generally, and also for furnishing fabrics, carpets, pottery, plastics, and paints. During the past few months many inquiries came from the Continent for these colours, but they were kept secret until British manufacturers were ready for them.

PROGRESS IN NAVAL AGREEMENT

The participants in the London Naval Conference of last March, which concluded the London Naval Treaty of 1936, were the five signatories of the Washington Treaty only—the United States, Japan, France, Italy, and the nations of the British Commonwealth. When Japan withdrew from the Conference in January it became clear at once that, though it was desirable to continue in session and to draw up a treaty between the remaining Powers only, the coming into force of that treaty must in practice be dependent upon some means of ensuring its application to the principal Navies not represented at the Conference as well as to those which were there. In plain language, this meant that, with Japan an uncertain factor, the inclusion of Germany in the treaty system was indispensable. To this end, owing to the well-understood difficulties of arranging for German participation in the Conference, negotiations were opened by this country, with the full approval of the other Conference Powers, for the conclusion of a bilateral Anglo-German agreement similar to the London Treaty.

Germany's naval interests, however, are largely in the Baltic; and, though the Russian Navy is not at present formidable in the larger classes of ship, the German Government could not be expected to bind themselves to qualitative limitations from which the Navy of her powerful neighbour was free. The conclusion of an agreement with Russia was therefore just as necessary to the ultimate efficacy of the London Treaty as that with Germany, and consequently negotiations for its conclusion were undertaken at the same time. Certain technical points caused difficulties at first, and the fact had also to be taken into consideration that Russia has important interests in the Far East as well as in Europe. The difficulties, however, have now been overcome, and complete understanding has been established upon all points at issue. The terms of the understanding have not yet been made public; but they are understood to be such as to give ground for hope that they will facilitate the adherence of Germany to the desired agreement, and will also smooth the way towards concord in the Far East. If that hope proves well founded the Government may fairly be congratulated upon having achieved a material advance towards the elimination of naval competition throughout the world, and towards some alleviation of the burden of armaments.

SUDDEN DEATH

Mr. C. A. da Roza

It is with deepest regret that we record the sudden demise of Mr. C. A. da Roza, A.B.A.A. who died at his residence yesterday afternoon about 5 p.m. The news comes as a shock, not only to the Portuguese community, but to all his numerous friends in the Colony.

The late Mr. da Roza was well-known in the business life of the Colony, being an exchange broker and director of the China Light and Power Co. Ltd., China Provident Loan and Mortgage Co. Ltd., among others.

A highly respected and public figure in Hong Kong, the deceased gentleman leaves many to mourn his loss. A wide measure of sympathy will be extended to Mrs. C. A. da Roza, his two daughters, Marie and Mimi, his two sons, Tony and Roy, and his two brothers, E.D. da Roza of Messrs. Lowe Bingham and Matthews, and A. W. da Roza.

Returning from a swim on Sunday, the deceased gentleman complained of slight indisposition. He was attended on Monday by his doctor who treated him for angina pectoris. After an improvement during Monday and Tuesday, Mr. da Roza had a slight relapse on Wednesday night and slept very badly. At 4.30 p.m. yesterday he collapsed and died at 5 p.m.

The funeral will take place to-day at 5.30 p.m. at the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

Caught unawares by the passing typhoon, an unnumbered junk was washed ashore at Cape Collinson yesterday morning about 7 a.m.

The boat was overturned and its inmates, Kwok Nui, 41, a married woman, and Leung Mok Kam, aged 6, are believed to have been drowned.

SEISTAN RESCUES

Another typhoon drama was the rescue of six members of a junk by the s.s. Seistan, of the Douglas Steamship Company. The Seistan left Hong Kong on Wednesday and when passing Hope Cape, just outside Swatow harbour, she came across this junk which was awash and almost sinking. The Seistan lowered a boat and despite the rough sea succeeded in rescuing the crew of six.

This news was wired to Hong Kong by Captain R. C. Creer, master of the Seistan.

"FIXED TRUSTS"

Committee's Recommendations

REGISTRATION URGED

London, Aug. 12.
A report is issued this evening of the committee appointed by the Board of Trade, "to inquire into the fixed trusts in all their aspects and to report what action, if any, is considered desirable in the public interest."

The committee takes exception to term "Fixed Trust" and among its recommendations is the prohibition of that term in the title of future rules. Committee itself use the term "Unit trusts."

The committee makes detailed recommendations for meeting dangers the satisfying criticisms of the unit trust movement which arise in its report. Of the 35 recommendations some call for legislation by Parliament, some for action by the Stock Exchanges and some for internal regulations by promoters and others acting in the association.

REGISTRATION

Among the most important of committee's conclusions are the recommendations, first that every unit trust should be registered in a manner analogous to the company registration and that certificate of registration should be necessary before the units or sub-units are offered for sale.

Second, that the management of unit trusts should be undertaken only by bodies incorporated in the United Kingdom. Third, that managers of unit trusts should make a deposit with the Paymaster General of a substantial sum—£20,000 is suggested—in respect of each trust managed by them with conditional exemption for existing trusts.

Fourth, that trust deeds should incorporate certain compulsory provisions including one providing for transferability of units and sub-units to which the committee attaches special importance as the fundamental condition of free market.

Fifth, that stamp duty should be payable on transfers of units and subunits.

Sixth, that the court should have power to wind up unit trusts. Seventh, that the Board of Trade should have power to appoint an inspector to investigate the conduct of trust on application of, say, holders of one tenth of units.

Other recommendations relate to publicity, rules of management, accounts, administration, etc. The committee recommends also that foreign and domestic organisations of unit trust type should be subject to the same regulations. Report is unanimous.

CHILDREN HELD UP IN WAR ZONE

Unusual Experience For German Party

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)
Berlin, Aug. 13.

The group of German school children who had been sent to Spain in exchange for Spanish children who came to Germany, returned here shortly before midnight on Wednesday. The group, which consists of boys and girls of 15 to 18 years of age, had been scheduled to return on July 25, but was held up by the outbreak of the civil war.

The children were staying at the little town of Lagranja about 50 miles from Madrid, and thus found themselves in the middle of the war zone. With the help of the Spanish Nationalists the children were transported via Segovia to Portugal and finally boarded at Lisbon a German steamer which conveyed them to Hamburg.

The writer points out that although political rapprochement between the two countries is very difficult, such an achievement might be more easy in economic and financial spheres.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN
TREATYOccupation Ends And Alliance Begins

London, August 13.

The terms of the draft treaty have not yet been officially revealed, but its main features are known. In outlining them the "Times" points out that three out of the four questions reserved by Britain to their own discretion when they recognised Egyptian independence have been settled. These questions are security of Empire communications, defence of Egypt against foreign intervention, and the Sudan.

The treaty provides for gradual removal of the British troops from Cairo to Ismailia region when the necessary barracks and other works have been completed for their reception.

The British naval needs in the Eastern Mediterranean are met by temporary arrangements at Alexandria and the Egyptian government have agreed to give better facilities for training of Royal Air Force units stationed in Egypt and for troops on the Canal.

They will also provide better direct communication between the Canal Zone and Alexandria than is at present available—a concession which will be to the advantage of both armies in case of need.

There will be no limits save those imposed by Budget and by other internal considerations to expansion and rearmament of the Egyptian army and the British military mission composed of serving officers will assist in its conversion into a strong and mobile striking force.

The treaty, it is understood, provides for a long-term Anglo-Egyptian defensive alliance within the framework of the covenant of the League.

With regard to the fourth of the reserved points, dealing particularly with protection of foreign interests in Egypt, this is at present effected by the capitulations treaties under which foreign powers who are parties to such treaties are allowed to exercise extraterritorial jurisdiction in regard to their nationals.

The British Government was naturally unable to accede to the Egyptian request for promise of moral support for unilateral denunciation of capitulations, but have agreed to support the Egyptian invitation to the capitulatory powers to a conference in Cairo during the coming winter when the whole question will be clearly discussed in an effort to negotiate a settlement.

HONOURABLE COMPROMISE

The problem of the Sudan has been solved by an honourable compromise. Egyptian troops will again take part in its defence. The application by the Egyptian Government for membership of the League of Nations will have the full support of the British Government.

SHUTTLECOCK WARFARE WAGED IN SPAIN

Increasing Intensity And Bitterness GOVERNMENT PRESSING ITS ADVANTAGE

Gen. Franco To Launch Big Thrust At Malaga

Shuttlecock warfare in Spain is being waged with increasing intensity and bitterness towards the climax. Madrid remains normal and calm, but northward of the capital, on the Guadarrama front, the Government is pressing its advantage against the insurgents under General Mola who are moving between Burgos and Saragossa, making a desperate effort to hold these centres, while General Franco's movement gains momentum in the south.

So far the northern and southern rebel forces have not established liaison in west Madrid for the loyalists are stoutly defending Bajados despite intensive air bombing by General Franco's planes, but a major clash of General Franco's offensive is pending on the coast near Malaga where insurgent regulars and Fascists, strongly equipped with machine guns and transport lorries, are advancing against the Communists and militia forces defending the Government's chief port and naval base.

PRESENT POSITION

The present situation may be summed up as follows:

While no major town has recently fallen into the hands of either side, the Government forces in the north are definitely harassing Saragossa and Oviedo, but are being hard-pressed at Irun and San Sebastian, to which two rebel warships have been despatched to assist the onslaught.

In the south the government forces content themselves with guerrilla warfare, but General Franco's position is rapidly becoming ominous. His air force at Seville which may well be the decisive factor is rapidly being augmented, whatever its source, while twelve planes are daily engaged in bringing troops to the mainland from Morocco.

Orin tales are spreading of sorties made by these troops, especially Moors from among the southern villages, where allegiance is doubtful, their methods being to make terrorising raids and shooting of any suspected men out of hand.

BULLFIGHTER'S THREAT
Hostages, civilian and otherwise, are paying the price for captors' reverses, while the press gives incitement.

For instance, the leader of the Cordoba newspaper "ABC" edited by a Fascist bullfighter is threatening the Government adherents under the heading "We shall rip them up like pigs."

In the same issue of the paper the Bishop of Pamplona announces readiness to grant a hundred days' indulgence for every Marxist life suppressed in Spain.

Placing modern weapons in the hands of crude peasantry is responsible for much of the indiscipline at present. For instance, the government enrolled shepherds from Granada mountains who are adepts at stones and slings, supplying them with grenades to replace stones.

GOVERNMENT CLAIMS

London, Aug. 13. The Spanish Government claims that the Asturian miners besieging Oviedo routed an insurgent column marching to assist anti-government forces at Oviedo.

The Government Militia which captured Ibiza, Balearic Isles, received an ovation from the populace on their return to Valencia and they are again leaving to attack Majorca.

BADAJOZ BOMBED

Lisbon, Aug. 13. A radio message announces that four insurgent planes raided the Government entrenchments at Badajoz, dropping over hundred bombs.

PRESIDENT'S DECREE

Madrid, Aug. 13. President Azana has decreed the dissolution of religious orders and Courts of Justice in territory controlled by the insurgents.

REBEL ARMIES MEET

A Seville wireless message picked up at Badajoz claims that Badajoz is completely isolated. It is declared by the rebels that the surrender of the city is expected to-day.

The message added that the armies under General Franco and General Mola, leading the south and north rebel forces respectively, had affected a junction at Merida.

The territory occupied by the anti-government forces is extending daily, the message stated. The rebels now occupy the provinces of Galicia, Leon, Castile, Jean, Aragon, Navarre, Asturias and Estramadure, except for the city of Badajoz, and Andalusia, except for Malaga.

It is claimed that these provinces are completely calm and that work has been resumed there.

GUADARRAMA SECTOR

Madrid, Aug. 12. Little military activity has occurred to-day in the Guadarrama mountains where the Government forces are consolidating their positions recently won.

The Government, however, claims successes in other parts of the country, and the rebel strongholds of Saragossa and Granada are expected to fall to-day. The loyalist troops are within six miles of Saragossa.

BAJAJOS SURROUNDED

Lisbon, Aug. 12. Badajoz is now entirely surrounded by insurgent troops and has been subjected to a heavy bombardment since 4 p.m. to-day by four three-engined planes, which have repeatedly dropped loads of bombs on the panic-stricken town.

From the hills on the Portuguese side of the frontier, the civilian population can be seen rushing out

GERMAN PLANES AT SEVILLE

New York Times Report

CORRESPONDENT'S ALLEGATIONS

New York, Aug. 12. Twenty heavy German Junker bombers and five German-built pursuit planes, manned by German military pilots, have arrived at the anti-Government headquarters at Seville, according to a message to the "New York Times," sent by courier to Gibraltar and relayed from the British fortress.

The correspondent said he had personally seen some of the new German planes.

The pilots, he says, are not uniformed, but the German Consulate at Seville privately admits that the men are German military aviators.

German sources at Seville are quoted as saying that the Germans will not fly the planes themselves but will instruct Spanish fliers in their handling.

Seven Caproni bombers are also said to have arrived at Seville during the last few days.

GERMANY'S NEW AMBASSADOR

French Press Views On Appointment

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)

Paris, Aug. 12.

The appointment of Hitler's "Ambassador at Large" to the post of Ambassador in London is indicated here as proof that Germany is eager to improve the Anglo-German relations. The "Figaro" says: "The appointment of Herr von Ribbentrop to this post at a time when Germany is trying to improve her relations with Britain is not to be underestimated."

The paper points out that von Ribbentrop showed his diplomatic adroitness during the previous parleys between Britain and Germany. The paper therefore warns the French Government to watch the further developments with the closest attention.

The Berlin correspondent of the "Journal" says that by appointing his foreign political adviser to the post of Ambassador at the Court of St. James, Hitler showed that he wants to be represented in Britain by his most capable diplomat. The paper adds that Herr von Ribbentrop has the advantage of possessing influential connections in London.

ALL IN THE DAY'S SPORT

Gossip From Far And Near

London, July 25.
The weight-lifter from Haiti, stepped through the entrance to the Olympic village near Berlin. The band struck up; the Haitian flag fluttered to the top of the pole; with sharp and crisp commands he was marched to his quarters by the German army officer in charge of the village and a squad of soldiers, writes a correspondent. With punctilious regard for ceremonial this sole representative of his country at the games was accorded the same greeting as the American and other teams numbered in hundreds.
Each team is greeted in this way. When the British arrive, they are to be among the last—they will find the village practically full.

WEATHER AT THE GAMES
Unsettled weather in Berlin has caused some anxiety. Precautions include the provision of waterproof paper "mackintoshes" at sixpence each. The music of the national anthems of all competing nations is to be printed on celluloid so that, wet or fine, the crowd may join in the singing which follows the announcement of the winner of each event.

Jesse Owens, the American sprinter, has had admiring audiences of fellow-athletes for his training at the Olympic Village. The arrow-like speed and straightness of his getaway from the blocks has been, perhaps, the most impressive feature of his running.
Glenn Hardin, the American who was second to R. M. Tisdall in the 400 metres hurdles at the Los Angeles Games, is another whose style is unusual. Partly because of his tallness, he takes his hurdles with so little break in his stride that his action seems to be continuous. As part of his training this week, Hardin did 400 metres on the flat—in 44 seconds.

LEADER IN BERLIN
Lord Burghley is to act as commandant of the British team in Berlin. No better man could have been chosen. During the games the nervous tension of the competitors is very high. It is essential to have a leader who has himself been through the mill and can therefore sympathise with the apparently small personal problems and can inspire confidence and fighting spirit.

If there were two things for which Lord Burghley was famous when he was an active athlete they were his refusal to admit defeat and his extreme sportsmanship whether losing or winning.

COMPTON FOR AUSTRALIA

I fancy I may have been among the first to make note of Compton's ability—not that it is particularly a matter for self-congratulation since it could not long have been hidden. He played for Middlesex for the first time on Whit-Saturday. Now, two months later, he is knocking at the door of the England side for Australia.
I have seen some of most of Compton's innings at Lord's, and at least one away from home (writes the cricket correspondent). He is not only a fine stroke-player, but one of those natural cricketers who seem to be born with the self-assurance of youth and the level-headedness of maturity. I think Compton should go to Australia and I think he will.

TO MEET AGAIN

P. Barnard, new world record holder for the one-mile walk, and A. A. Cooper, of Woodford Green, A. C., whom he defeated in so unexpected and summary a manner, will meet again to-morrow at Victoria Park Harriers' meeting, when an official attempt will be made on the 1000 metres record.
Barnard, who was second to Cooper in this year's A.A.A. championship, holds the Latvian record for the 1000 metres.

FAGG'S QUALITIES

If the intrinsic merit of his batting were to be the issue, Fagg perhaps would have little if anything in hand of several other county players as regards the tour to Australia. He has two other strings to his bow.

First, Fagg is such a fair wicket-keeper that the committee might well decide to send him as understudy to W. H. V. Leyland, or Duckworth should Ames be still unfit. Also (and this is less well known) Fagg is a first-rate slip fielder, ranking among the younger players with N. S. Mitchell-Innes, and Parker, of Surrey. In the absence of 100 per cent. all-rounders such factors as these must weigh heavily when it comes to the last place or two.

ENTERTAINING CRICKET

As usual, Surrey and Kent provide first-class entertainment. There could scarcely be a keener contrast to the combat between Yorkshire and Lancashire. Spiders may spin their webs about a Yorkshireman scoring 28 in two hours, or a Lancashire opening batsman scrapping one in 50 minutes. In this southern game the rate has seldom dropped below 75 to the hour. Moreover, the match is embellished by the sprightly and eager play of cricketers promoted from the second elevens.

Spencer's innings for Kent was entrancing. Wright, who was in with him, would have been outstanding had Spencer not been playing.

On the Surrey side McMurray, who once gained glory for the way he fielded as substitute in a Test Match, batted impressively. Dayey consolidates his position as the side's slow spin bowler more certainly each match.

A. P. F. Chapman and E. R. T. Holmes are two of the most popular captains ever to visit Australia. Although rain may fall for several overs neither looks at the sky or at the pavilion until compelled.

FOOTBALLER-CRICKETERS

Reading F. C. report for training on August 4. For a fortnight they will meet local cricket teams as part of their training. Reading cricket talent suggests minor comeliness strength.

Hayhurst, the centre-half-back and captain, bowls a fine medium fast ball for Warwickshire. Doolery makes runs for the same county.

Fielding is following the example he has set himself for many years past by making centuries in club cricket. Gregory is one of the best fast bowlers outside county cricket. The latest addition to the staff is Watkin, formerly of Aston Villa, who is a prolific run-getter for Notts' second team.

A KANGAROO CAUSES

—INTERNATIONAL COMPLICATIONS—

AT THE OLYMPIC GAMES

A Kangaroo, mascot of the Australians at the Olympic games, has nearly caused international complications. It is a friendly animal and accepted with commendable impartiality and devastating digestive consequences gifts of dainty foods from people of all nations. It became desperately doubtful, whether the mascot would survive the games. "A warning in three languages has been posted begging kindly athletes not to feed the Kangaroo."

The teams already established in the Olympic Village at Döberitz, fifteen miles from Berlin, are well entertained. The village is controlled by the Reichswehr, whose bands play in each new team. Meals are taken with a background of military brass bands. German and Italian teams sing marching songs as they move from the training track to their quarters. A cinema show and musical entertainment are provided free each night to crowded audiences in swimming costumes, trunks or sweat-suits.

JAPANESE CREW HAVE CHANGED THEIR METHODS—

AND ARE STUDYING SLOW MOTION FILMS

Since their Henley defeat, the Japanese eight, from Tokyo Imperial University have altered their methods in Berlin. They have lengthened their stroke, and are showing considerable interest in the training of other crews, of which they have taken slow-motion films.

John Coulson, the Canadian sculler, leaves for Berlin next week. He will not race at the Olympic Regatta but becomes spare man for the Canadian eight. He means to return here next year. His victory in the London Cup was some consolation for his bad luck at Marlow and in the Diamonds.

In Coulson's opinion the Olympic sculls will not go a Ruffi, the Diamonds winner, or to Zavrel, the Czechoslovakian who since has beaten him, but rather to Cyril Pearce, of Australia the younger brother of Bob Pearce, world professional champion, or to Schaefer, of Germany, who seems to be better than H. Buhtz. He has been coached by an English professional.

GOLF

R. T. JONES AT ST. ANDREWS

London, July 29.

R. T. Jones, who is on his way to Germany for the Olympic Games, was at St. Andrews yesterday, when he played a round over the Old Course, the scene of his triumph in 1930. Unfortunately for him St. Andrews got to hear of his intention and he was mobbed on the first teeing-ground by crowds of misguided enthusiasts who, after greeting his appearance with applause, invaded the teeing-ground so that it was necessary for the Captain, Alexander, and Willie Auchterlonie and Gordon Lockhart, with whom Jones was playing, to appeal to the crowd to give them a chance of some golf.

Even so it was an uneasy round, the crowd dashing about all over the course without the least consideration for Jones and his partners, and the round must have been a great disappointment to the distinguished visitor, who had been looking forward to renewing his acquaintance with the links. Nevertheless, once the crowd allowed him to play Jones showed that his art had not deserted him. After holding a longish putt for a 3 at the Dyke he had another 3 at the Heatherly and a 2 at the Short Hole. With a 4 at the End he was out in 32. Coming home he had rather too many 5's, but finished in a blaze of glory with a 4 at the Road, and holed a good putt for a 3 at the Home Hole.

Jones, after struggling back to the club house through a throng of over-enthusiastic admirers, said that he had come to the British Isles in order to play once more at St. Andrews. He had enjoyed the round and the crowd had given him a wonderful reception. He added that he had never seen the Old Course in such fine condition and that the greens were perfect.

by 11:7 and the latter beating Switzerland 15-8.

The semi-finals of the Olympic Hockey tournament were likewise decided on Wednesday afternoon. The Indian team which is considered to have the easiest chances to win, ultimately beat the French team by 10-0, while in the other semi-final Germany qualified to meet India in the final on Friday, beating Holland by 3-0.

The Basket Ball final will likewise be held on Friday.

SOVIET PREMIUMS FOR BIG FAMILIES

Drastic Limitation Of Abortion

A few weeks ago the Soviet Press published the text of a proposed law which provided that abortion, which has been performed legally in Government clinics since the Revolution, could not be performed legally except for the preservation of the life of the expectant mother.

The law also provided for State subsidies to be given to women bearing more than seven children and for the increasing of living-in homes, nurseries, and kindergartens; for severer penalties for the failure of parents to pay allowances for the support of children in cases of divorce, and for sharp increases in the fees for divorce graduated from 50 roubles for the first to 300 roubles for the third and later divorces.

The terms of the measure, except for the most unqualified prohibition of abortion, were no surprise to the public at large because the general lines had been forecast in a number of press articles. What was unexpected was an invitation to all sections of the public to debate the measure. Meetings of clubs and trade unions were called for the purpose, and the columns of the press were opened to letters from readers. In the past the appearance of a letter from a reader in the columns of a Soviet newspaper has been a noteworthy event—and the publication of one critical of Government projects virtually unheard of.

WOMEN'S HOSTILITY

The response to the invitation must have been both gratifying and disturbing to the leaders. If they had hoped to demonstrate to themselves that the Soviet masses were not the crushed and docile helots, helpless victims of the propaganda machine, described abroad by hostile writers, they succeeded well enough. No Russian scorn an invitation to talk, and here was a chance to talk freely on a subject which affected a great many people.

It was the women who took the lead in the discussion. Side by side with the leaders on the editorial pages of "Pravda" and "Izvestia," hailing the draft as an exemplification of "Stalinist care of mother and child" and citing the reasons why Soviet womanhood should find joy in bearing twelve children for the Socialist State in order to receive a subsidy of 5,000 roubles a year, were angry demands from women—factory workers, office employees, students and teachers, collectivized farmers—for a recognition of the right to legal abortion for reasons of economic necessity, coupled with indignant recitals of the lack of housing accommodation for large families in the notorious overcrowded Soviet urban centres and the failure of Soviet shops to supply children's beds, perambulators, bathtubs, nursing bottle and nipples, clothing, and shoes.

THE BILL ENACTED

Where dissatisfaction with the draft's provisions on divorce and family allowances were voiced, it was usually to advocate stricter regulations and harsher penalties. But there was a noticeable absence of defenders of the prohibition of abortion, whilst the chorus of pretexts swelled steadily in volume. As the opposition grew the press and other propaganda agencies redoubled their efforts, at first rather perfunctory, to convince the public of the soundness of the law and the urgent necessity for it. Whereas a year ago statistics were published to show that the number of deaths in the U.S.S.R. as a result of legal abortions had been negligible and the assertion was made that there were no records to indicate deleterious after-effects of such operations performed under proper conditions, the press now attempted to contradict this by publishing statements of medical authorities on the harmful effects of the practice and statements from various women that they had suffered in health because of abortions.

On June 27 the Government announced that the bill was to become law forthwith and with virtually no changes. The prohibition of legal abortion went into effect without any deference to the demand for the recognition of economic justification; the only change made was to permit abortion in cases where inheritable disease of the persons involved could be established. The mother of seven will receive 2,000 roubles a year for five years and a like sum for each child in excess of seven. On the birth of an eleventh child the mother will receive 5,000 roubles and 3,000 roubles annually for four years and like amounts for each subsequent child.

PEOPLING THE EMPTY REGIONS

Thus the Soviet Union has aligned itself with those nations committed to a policy of encouraging unlimited increase of population. The fact that this throws the Socialist Fatherland into the strange company of Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany is one which none of the debaters within the U.S.S.R. had the temerity to point out. The policy of the Soviet Government is to plan for a population of not less than 300,000,000 in 1975, according to a statement by Mr. V. I. Mezhlauk, chairman of the Government Planning Commission. The Government frankly wants a vastly large population, not only for military needs but also in order to people great expanses of territory which at present are little inhabited.

The official statistics continue to show big increases in population. The birth-rate for the first quarter of 1936 was reported to have increased 34 per cent as compared with the same period of 1935. It is certain that the new prohibition of legal abortion will result in a great leap in this already accelerating rate. It is known that the Soviet authorities have been greatly concerned over the spread of abortion among the peasantry, where the birth-rate has always been highest.

SMUGGLING IN CHINA

JAPAN'S TARIFF HINT

Tokyo, July 28. Sir Robert Clive, the British Ambassador, saw Mr. Horinouchi, the Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, to-day with reference to the inquiry which Mr. Kuwahara, director of the Far Eastern section of the Foreign Office, has been conducting into the smuggling in North China.

Mr. Horinouchi said that during June there had been a marked diminution in smuggling of rayon, cigarette paper, and sugar, the three commodities that had been chiefly favoured. Without seriously disputing the contention that the decrease was due to the market being saturated, he thought that the time was approaching when, if the Chinese reduced their tariffs—some of which were excessive—the evil would disappear. Mr. Kawagoe, the Japanese Ambassador in China, was prepared to discuss tariff revision with Nanking, and Mr. Horinouchi suggested that Great Britain, as a trading nation, might second his efforts to obtain a reduction.

SERVING GOD THROUGH HITLER

REICH YOUTH LEADER'S THEOLOGY

Munich, July 28. The Reich Youth leader, Herr Baldur von Schirach, at a Hitler Youth camp in the Bavarian Alps on Sunday, replying to reproaches that his organization was "godless," said:

One cannot be a good German and at the same time deny God, but an avowal of faith in the eternal Germany is at the same time an avowal of faith in the eternal God. For us the service of Germany is the service of God. If we act as true Germans we act according to the laws of God. Whoever serves Adolf Hitler, the Führer, serves Germany, and whoever serves Germany serves God.

In an official party statement issued to-day it is definitely said down that "the whole education of the German youth outside the schools is the concern of the Youth Leader of the German Reich."

NEW K.C.S.

Scottish Appointments

London, July 29.

The King has been pleased, on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for Scotland, to whom the names were submitted by the Lord Justice-General, to approve of the rank and dignity of King's Counsel to His Majesty in Scotland being conferred on Mr. William Garrett, advocate; Mr. James Gordon McIntyre, M.C., advocate; Mr. George Reid Thomson, advocate; Mr. James Latham M'Diarmid Clyde, advocate; and Mr. John Cameron, advocate.

NOTABLE CAREERS

Mr. Garrett was admitted to the Faculty of Advocates in December, 1914. During the war he served in the Army, from which he was invalided out in 1917. Thereafter he served in the Ministry of National Service. After the war he gained a varied practice, which has greatly increased in recent years. In the first year of de-rating, when the Inland Revenue was entitled to be represented, Mr. Garrett acted for the Revenue in over 100 appeals. Mr. Garrett is an authority on international private law, in which subject he is lecturer at Edinburgh University. He was made Standing Junior Counsel in Scotland for the Admiralty in 1934.

Mr. James Gordon McIntyre is the only son of the late Mr. T. W. McIntyre, of Sorn, Ayrshire, and was born in 1896. He was educated at Winchester, which he left at the outbreak of war to join the Army. He served with the Ayrshire Yeomanry in Gallipoli, Palestine, and France, and for his gallantry in action he was awarded the Military Cross and bar and the Croix de Guerre. Shortly before the Armistice he was seriously wounded. After leaving hospital Mr. McIntyre went to Oxford, where he graduated B.A. with Honours in Jurisprudence. He thereafter took the LL.B. degree at Glasgow University, and was called to the Bar in 1922. For several years he has been a prominent junior. In October last he was appointed an Advocate-Depute. In 1923 Mr. McIntyre married the younger daughter of the late Mr. Robert Scott Moncrieff, W.S., of Downhill.

Mr. G. R. Thomson is a son of the late Rev. W. R. Thomson, B.D., of St. Andrews, Cape Town, and Bellshill. He was educated at the South African College, Cape Town, where he gained a Rhodes Scholarship and proceeded to Oxford. In 1914 he enlisted in the University at Public Schools Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers, and in the following year was gazetted to the 5th Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, with whom he served in Egypt, Palestine, and France till the end of the war. After demobilisation Mr. Thomson took the degree of LL.B. at Edinburgh University with distinction, and was called to the Bar in July, 1922. Since then he has carried on an extensive practice as a junior. He edited the second edition of "Renton and Brown's Criminal Procedure."

He obtained his LL.B. degree with distinction at Edinburgh University, and was called to the Bar in June, 1924, rapidly gaining an extensive junior practice, especially in local government work. He was appointed junior assessor to the Corporation of Edinburgh, a position held in recent years by Mr. T. Graham Robertson (now Lord Robertson), Mr. T. M. Cooper, K.C., M.P. (now the Lord Advocate), and the late Mr. W. A. Murray, K.C.

He has a large general practice, and acted as junior counsel for the liquidators in liquidations arising out of liquidation of Scottish amalgamated Silks.

THE DAVIS CUP

AUSTRALIA WIN THE DOUBLES

London, July 18.

Great Britain's chances of keeping the Davis Cup are not appreciably more slender because Australia won the doubles match in the Challenge Round at Wimbledon yesterday. It was, after all, a victory that Australia were justified in counting upon; and J. H. Crawford and A. K. Quist, with more anxiety than daring, duly beat G. P. Hughes and C. R. D. Tuckey in four sets by 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, 10-8.

At all events the contest is still alive; but the British team will come to the last two singles matches to-day with a lead of two victories to one, and that should be sufficient to make them the winners. However, Australia themselves were beaten by the United States two years ago after winning the first two matches, and there is a world of difference between a lead of two victories to none and two to one. The first match to-day, between H. W. Austin and Quist, has always been considered to be the most open of the five. Quist from what we have seen of him in the last 10 days, will certainly not fall off the early ball as Crawford did on Saturday. If, on the other hand, Austin plays with the serene command he had then it is likely that the Cup will be won again without having to rely upon the mastery that F. J. Perry has established over Crawford. But from a British standpoint that mastery is comforting to think about; a decision, after all, be left to the fifth match, and then we should know all that Austin's victory over Crawford meant.

FIGHTING OFF DEFEAT

There was a remarkable number of people round the Centre Court for yesterday's doubles; to-day we shall have the last full house of the year. Crawford and Quist, however, played so cautiously—they had good reason—that the match was hardly up to Challenge Round standards until the end of the fourth set, when Hughes and Tuckey, having looked like going into a fifth set, were soon fighting off defeat. On the whole the British pair did not play so well as when they won the decisive third match from W. L. Allison and J. Van Ryn last year; but that was because the Australians were a little too clever for them. The American hard-hitting at least had enabled them to win the point when nimble feet took them to their strokes. Yesterday Crawford often deliberately made the pace slow and relied more upon his astute placing. Strange, for a doubles, he was never serving at full power, as though he feared putting his best into the match and have it fail.

In many ways Tuckey was the outstanding player of the four for his tremendous serving to the backhand; the sweep of his forehand returns, and the power of his volleys. Yet in the end it was the loss of Tuckey's service, on which fewer than 10 points had been lost in three and a half sets, that cost Great Britain the match. Time and again Tuckey served and won games to love because his first ball came in with such power that what returns there were could easily be killed. Then, when the fourth set was there for the taking in the ninth game, he needed a second ball; two volleys were put down; and with two men having run for the same shot Crawford simply could not miss the opening.

Where once in this fourth set the British team had come back from the interval to lead by five games to two, they were now facing Quist's service in the 12th game with the match at stake. Quist put a backhand volley down in exactly the same way as he did at a precious set-point against Perry, and a match that had been rather colourless for its lack of rallies became an exciting fight. Where Quist had been "holding the fort" with his quick drives and volleys, Crawford at last rose to victory. Twice the set had depended upon his winning his service; in the 18th game he was to serve and win the match by making an unmissable smash for Quist. That was only after Tuckey had lost his service a second time. It was Hughes, from the sunny side, who had done so in each of the other two lost sets.

Both Hughes and Tuckey were delightfully firm with their high volleys, but they were really doing no more than giving Crawford's short lobs the killing they deserved. A slight advantage in return of service, a little more even balance in the volleying position, and especially the ability of Crawford to

PREPARATIONS FOR TOKYO GAMES

Olympic Decision Reported To Spirit Of Emperor Meiji

CELEBRATIONS IN CAPITAL

The Japan Athletic Association held a special committee meeting on Saturday (Aug. 1), in the presence of Lieutenant-General Oshima, managing director of the Association, Mr. Imamura, an adviser, Messrs. Go and Sakurai, directors, and others, and sent cables of thanks to Count Ballet-Latour, chairman of the I.O.C., and Mr. Hiranuma, head of the Japanese Olympic delegation.

Later the body went in a group to the Meiji Shrine in order to report this Olympic success to the spirit of the Emperor Meiji, and they also "reported" at the tomb of the late Dr. Kishi, former president of the A.A.A. In the afternoon they returned to the Association's office and discussed preparations for the 12th Olympics.

The Japan Athletic Association has of course the obligation of forming the 12th Olympic Organising Committee, but the Association's committee has decided to retain the Olympic Invitation Committee in being until the business is formally handed over to Japan. Keeping pace with the Education Office and Tokyo city, the Japan Broadcasting Company is reported to be working out plans to receive foreign radio announcers in 1940.

According to present plans, they intend to establish sound proof boxes in the press section of the stadium for the benefit of these announcers, and the broadcast will be by five short-wave transmitters.

The details are to be decided after the return of Mr. Tanomogi, secretary of the Association, who is now in Berlin as one of the Olympic announcers.

An Osaka share broker, Mr. Selsuke Tomiwa, has already contributed ¥5,000 to the funds of the 12th Olympics.

Mr. Tomiwa said to reporters: "Though the amount is very small, I hope the authorities concerned will appreciate the spirit of it. Since the Olympics afford us an opportunity of showing the best side of the Japanese people, the nation, must unite in supporting the Games."

STREETS BEFLAGGED

The city of Tokyo yesterday celebrated its selection as the venue for the 1940 Games. The streets were beflagged with the Rising Sun and the Olympic flags, and a number of meetings befitting the occasion were held. A formal celebration dinner was given at the Tokyo Hotel at noon in the presence of Prince Asaoka Kuni. The dinner was attended by about 650 officials and civilians including Prince Tokugawa, Mr. Nagata, the Overseas Minister, Dr. Ogawa, the Commerce Minister, Mr. Uchida, the former Railway Minister, Baron Go, president of the Japan Chamber of Commerce, and Mayor Aoki of Yokohama.

Mayor Ushizuka, in a brief speech, explained the circumstances leading to the selection of Tokyo as venue. Prince Tokugawa and Mr. Nagata also spoke.

Following the above reception, fireworks were staged in several places. Three aeroplanes distributed handbills, special "jubilation tickets" were sold at the Municipal Pool, the Municipal Boat House and the Municipal Zoo.

At night, special music and motion pictures dealing with sports were shown at the Music Hall in Hibiya. A number of members of the young men's association staged a trumpet procession in the principal streets.

have two men running the wrong way, although Quist, maybe, scored more points, brought Australia a close victory that was warmly cheered. It had not the fire about it that one has seen on the Centre Court, but at all events it means that Australia live to fight to-day.

PRESENTATION TO MR. DAVIS
The lawn tennis nations of the world yesterday paid a tribute to Mr. Dwight Davis, the American donor of the trophy which bears his name. Sir Samuel Hoare, president of the Lawn Tennis Association, presenting Mr. Davis with a gold repeater watch inscribed with his monogram and the words "Presented by all the lawn tennis nations of the world," said that the growth of international lawn tennis was largely due to Mr. Davis.

CHINESE TRADE FIGURES

Effects Of The Smuggling

KWANGSI PEACE MOVE

The value of imports into China during the first six months of this year totalled $459,000,000, compared with $545,000,000 during the corresponding period of 1935. Exports came to $332,000,000, as against $259,000,000, the excess of imports over exports being $126,000,000, compared with $286,000,000 in the first half of 1935. The marked improvement in the figures for exports should be discounted in some degree because there has been a heavy fall in the exchange value of the dollar.

The reduced figures for imports do not represent the true position, because official imports of arms and the huge volume of smuggled goods in both North and South are not included in the Customs figures. The actual excess of imports is therefore much higher than the above-mentioned figure and requires a corresponding provision if the balance of foreign payments due is to be met. The fact that so great a proportion of the volume of imports does not pass through the Customs means a heavy loss to Customs revenue, and a corresponding difficulty in making payments abroad. Smuggling in the South, however, will diminish substantially in the immediate future, and there are indications that Japan is ceasing to countenance this damaging contraband trade in the North. In this event the Government will soon be able to reduce smuggling to negligible proportions. In spite of adverse conditions, Customs collections have recently shown an upward tendency.

OFFER TO KWANGSI LEADERS

The Government are making a bold attempt to bring the Kwangsi leaders into the fold by appointing General Pai Chung-hai Governor of Chekiang. General Chiang Kai-shek's own Province and one of the richest and most important in the country. The present Governor, General Huang Shaohsiung, is a Kwangsi notable of marked ability; he has now been transferred to his native Province as Pacification Commissioner. General Li Tsung-jen has been appointed a member of the standing committee of the newly formed National Defence Council; this involves his residence in Nanking and gives him an important voice in national affairs.

The two Kwangsi leaders have long been avowed political opponents of General Chiang Kai-shek, and the establishment of a practically independent South-West Government was largely the outcome of their anti-Nanking policy. Both men have done a great deal to develop the resources of their Province and to modernize the administration. They are now being given a great opportunity to prove their patriotism by accepting the generous offer of their old enemy to serve the Central Government at this critical time rather than continue plunging a dangerous furrow of their own in remote Kwangsi. General Chiang Kai-shek will personally visit Canton within a few days.

DUKE & DUCHESS OF YORK GO DOWN A MINE

600ft. Descent In Durham

PIECE OF COAL HEWN AS SOUVENIR

London, July 29. The Duke and Duchess of York put on overalls and descended 600ft into a Durham coal mine to-day. They hewed pieces of coal, and the Duchess took one as a souvenir.

Afterwards they talked to some of the miners and their wives, and played bowls on a green adjoining the colliery.

This was the second day of their Royal Highnesses' five-day tour of the north-east. The weather was good, and they were cheered by crowds as they drove in an open car from Lumley Castle, where they had been the guests of Capt. and Mrs. Roger Lumley.

The Duchess's brother, Lord Glamis, who is chairman of John Bowes and Partners Ltd., which owns the Kibblesworth Colliery, accompanied them down the mine.

OVERALLS DONNED

Near the pit the Duchess laid the foundation stone of a new miners' welfare centre. Then the party walked to the engine house of the colliery and had details of the machinery explained to them.

In the basement of the engine house the Duke put on a miner's leather helmet and a brown overall, and the Duchess tied round her head a red scarf and put on a white overall.

After laughingly submitting to the regulation search for matches and cigarettes, they went into the cage and were lowered 600ft to the "Buster" seam.

The Duke took an axe and hewed a piece of coal, and the Duchess then tried her skill. Her first three attempts produced only crumbled pieces, but she persevered and chipped away a neat piece of coal which she slipped into the pocket of her overall.

After inspecting another part of the colliery workings, the party returned to the cage and were brought to the surface again, blinking as they emerged into the sunlight.

Then came a walk round the miners' and aged miners' cottages, and a visit to the bowling green adjoining the colliery.

THE WRONG REAS

Several men were playing. The Duke and Duchess watched them for a while, and the Duchess stooped and picked up one of the "woods" and bowled. One of her shots passed only a few inches wide of the "jack."

The Duke, however, was not so skilful, and his first shot went wide. One of the men remarked: "You had the wrong bias, sir," and went on to tell his Royal Highness about the tricks of the game.

Later they returned to Lumley Castle, and in the afternoon left for Alnwick Castle, where they were to stay as the guests of the Duke of Northumberland, and his mother, the Duchess of Northumberland.

THE EMBASSY IN CHINA

ABANDONMENT OF PEKING NOT CONTEMPLATED

London, July 28.
In a written reply to a question concerning the British Embassy in China, Mr. Eden stated yesterday:
My honourable friend is no doubt aware that arrangements already exist for the accommodation of the Ambassador and one Secretary at Nanking, and that the Ambassador resides at that capital for considerable periods during each year. In his absence at Peking it is usual for the Counsellor of the Embassy to reside at Nanking.
I am unable to state when it will be possible to move the whole staff of the Embassy to Nanking, as this must depend upon the construction of the necessary premises. Up to the present the site for these premises has not been

BRITISH INTERESTS IN SPAIN

London, Aug. 12.
Mr. Ogilvie Forbes, Counsellor of the British Embassy at Madrid, now on leave in London, will shortly return to Spain to take charge of the Embassy.
The Ambassador, Sir Henry Chilton, who was in summer quarters at San Sebastian at the beginning of the outbreak of civil war, has since moved to Hendaye.
The British population of Madrid now does not exceed 200, in all probability.
definitely acquired, though, as was stated in reply to a question on June 29, his Majesty's Charge d'Affaires is negotiating with the Chinese Government for a suitable site. I should like to make it clear that the abandonment of the present Embassy at Peking is not contemplated. There are important British interests in North China which render its retention desirable.

MOSCOW'S WAYS IN SPAIN

Dutch Journal's Disclosures

ACTIVITIES OF COMINTERN

Amsterdam, Aug. 13.
Under the heading "Moscow throws away the mask 'The Maas Bode'" publishes a remarkable analysis of the secret plans of the Third International in the countries of Western Europe.
The "Maas Bode" asserts that Moscow attempted systematically to infect the Spanish Army with usloiyaly. Immediately after the outbreak of the Civil War a meeting of the Comintern, at which Bucharin was present, was held at Strassbourg, whereby it was decided not only that all imaginable help should be rendered to the Spanish Communists, but also that a completely new method should be worked out by which the French army should be communistically inspired. For this purpose the experiences gained in Spain should be utilised. In order to weaken the resistance it was decided that in France a far reaching Communist Secret Service be organised.
"To-day," the "Maas Bode" continues, "every garrison in France has its own Communist centre and 'Confidential Council' of three members whose task it is to spy on the officers and furnish the Comintern with regular reports."
In Strassbourg it was asserted that in the French Army and Navy and Airforce over 250 cells already exist.

RUSSIAN ARMY INCREASE

Berlin Press Foresees Great Danger

Berlin, Aug. 12.
Difficulties for the Five-Power Conference, arranged for the autumn, are foreshadowed by the newspapers as the result of the increase in the Russian Army resulting from the lowering of the entrance age for recruits.
The step is regarded here as creating an altogether new situation, and the newspapers express the opinion that the political events accompanying it leave no doubt of the aggressive character of Russia's armaments increases.
The "Berliner Tageblatt" declares that the danger from the East is now greater than ever.

MR. BERNARD SHAW

CELEBRATES 80th. BIRTHDAY

London, July 27.
Mr. Bernard Shaw was 80 years old yesterday. No one is likely to have been less impressed by the occasion than Mr. Shaw himself. But while it is true that vigorous old age has become every man's birthright, and that in the not distant future no family will count itself complete that does not include at least one centenarian among its number, Mr. Shaw will be the first to agree with the verdict that to have been George Bernard Shaw for 80 years is a unique achievement. Certainly it is a role that none but Mr. Shaw himself could have sustained half so brilliantly. Probably there are more who admire his success than envy it, for to ordinary people it will seem that his attendant spirit has been a singularly exacting taskmaster. Yet the vigour both of mind and body which Mr. Shaw enjoys in old age suggests that he is none the worse for having lectured and reproved mankind so furiously and for so long.

FORTUNATE

No doubt Mr. Shaw is aware, none more so, that he is fortunate not to have been born in an earlier century, for it is certain that in the days of ear-cropping his ears would not have escaped. Indeed he had not lost ears, head, and all. It is even possible that in the twentieth century Mr. Shaw's life would not have been safe if all his warnings and forebodings had proved to be true. Mankind will tolerate almost anything from its prophets except true prophecy, and Mr. Shaw has been wrong often enough for his own salvation. His mistakes and his wit have been his best protectors. To give him his due Mr. Shaw has never pretended always to be a true prophet. His air of omniscience has more often than not been the device of the man who loves to talk, and is more anxious to secure an audience than to make converts.

EXCEPTION TO RULE

It rarely happens that the man who likes talking is worth listening to, but Mr. Shaw is the most brilliant exception to the rule that this century is likely to meet, for even when he talks nonsense it is witty nonsense. And it has the merit, that alone justifies nonsense, which is to make truth the plainer. When Mr. Shaw appears to be talking out of his hat he is often the cause of celebration under his audience's hats. It is an achievement that other and more sober teachers may well envy but not imitate. Mr. Shaw deserves well of mankind, and he has never asked more from his fellow-beings than that they should listen to him. If they ever came to agree with him his occupation would be gone. At the age of 80 he has still more hearers than disciples. His task still lies before him, and his audience awaits with keen anticipation the latest example of his pugnacious industry.

BRITISH CORPORAL KILLED

Another Palestine Incident

Jerusalem, Aug. 12.
A corporal was killed and three privates were wounded when thirty Arabs surprised ten British soldiers, eight of whom were bathing, at a pool near the frontier of Trans-Jordan.
The Arabs advanced stealthily and shot the two sentries of the party. The other troops were unable to reach their rifles.
The raiders seized the soldiers' uniforms and scattered towards the hills.
A large force of infantry, in addition to the Trans-Jordan Frontiermen, assisted by aircraft, scoured the country side for the raiders.
Reuter's Bulletin Service.

A dragon-fly was the cause of a near-riot off Yangtzeppoo late on Wednesday afternoon, when two groups of coolies clashed, resulting in injuries to two rickshaw pullers, according to the "China Times".
Two pullers were sitting in their vehicles in the street when they saw a dragon-fly. Chasing it with a stick, they struck, by mistake, a Kiangsi coolie. A quarrel ensued, both sides setting their own supporters. A free-for-all started, and when the police arrived, the gangs dispersed. Two injured coolies were sent to hospital.

MR. SHAW GETS HIS THREEPENNY GIFTS

HIS VIEWS ON PRESENTS

Malvern, July 25.
On the occasion of his 80th birthday to-morrow, Mr. George Bernard Shaw has expressed his views on birthday presents.
He said that the actors of the Malvern Festival Company, whom he is rehearsing here in some of his old plays for the Festival which opens to-night, were cultivating among themselves to give him a birthday present.
He immediately wrote to Mr. Ernest Thesiger, begging them not to.

The idea of people being "black-mailed" into subscribing for him was abhorrent to him, he said, and invariably resulted in his being presented with some "silver atrocity" which would be no use to him at all.
Birthday presents should be personal, and he suggested that each member of the company should make him a present—on one condition.

The condition was that no present should cost more than 3d. It was impossible, he wrote, to give him anything expensive that he needed, as he and his wife had plenty of money and had already bought all those things.

DRAWING BOOK

The actors and actresses have taken him at his word and have all bought him presents costing 3d. Among these I saw were a packet of razor blades and a children's drawing book, writes a correspondent.

Mr. Shaw has declared that to-morrow he will celebrate his birthday by losing himself in the Welsh hills. He says in being 80 nothing more remarkable than being 79 or 81.
To-day, in the small wooden gymnasium at the bottom of the festival ground, I watched Mr. Shaw taking the cast through a last-minute rehearsal of St. Joan, which is being produced to-night in honour of his birthday.

Occasionally, he sprang to his feet to take part in the rehearsal, demonstrating how a particular passage should go. At the end of the scene he had a long discussion with Miss Wendy Hillier, who is playing St. Joan as her first introduction to Shavian plays.

CANADIAN GIRLS

Outside were a party of 150 Canadian schoolgirls and their teachers, who have come from the farthest parts of Canada to the festival.

The idea, one of the leaders explained, is to combat the American cultural influence, which dominates most of them, and to give them a better insight into English thought.

All of them have seen American films, but several of them have never before seen a stage play. They were admitted to a dress-rehearsal last night, and to show them how a theatre works. Sir Barry Jackson had all the scenes changed with the curtain raised. The girls applauded the scene-shifters as much as the actors.

THE WORLD PEACE CONGRESS

TO BE HELD IN BRUSSELS

London, July 25.
The World Peace Congress is to be held in Brussels instead of in Geneva, as was at first intended, and it will keep to the date arranged, September 3 to September 6. Lord Cecil had formerly hoped it would be held in Geneva because the International Youth Peace Conference is meeting there from August 31 to September 6, with the support of the League of Nations societies, but the position has been altered by the postponement of the Assembly to September 21.

The World Peace Congress, of which Lord Cecil and M. Pierre Cot are joint presidents, is to be the first step in a great world movement. Its purpose is to plan future methods of propaganda for peace in all countries, and it will work through all the existing peace organisations in each country. It is thought that it would lead to a sort of anticlimax feeling if the congress were to meet in Geneva so long before the Assembly of the League, but it will send a strong delegation to Geneva to present its findings to the Assembly.

OPPENHEIMER £140,000 SALE

GREEK WARRIOR'S TOMBSTONE

(By A. C. R. CARTER).

London, July 28.
Although the modest second portion of the Oppenheimer medals, in realising £2,320 at Christie's yesterday, had the effect of raising the aggregate to over £140,000, the chief auction event in London was at Sotheby's, where an example of classic Greek sculpture brought £750. This was given by Mr. Joseph Brummer, of New York, who made himself very conspicuous by paying 27,000 guineas for the marble "Wounded Amazon" by the pupil of Phedias, Polykletos, in the celebrated Lansdowne sale, 1930.

The example sold yesterday was originally the tombstone of a Greek warrior of the fifth century B.C., and took the form of a white marble stele carved in relief, with the life-sized figure of a fighting man in a short chiton, or tunic, with shield, sword and spear. It had been sent for sale by Colonel C. T. Gordon, of Aberdeenshire, a descendant of Major-Gen. Thomas Gordon, of the Greek Service in the early 19th century. An Ostro-Gothic fibula (sent from New York) was also bought by Mr. Brummer for £225.

One of the chief Oppenheimer medals yesterday was bought by Mr. John Hunt for £80—a portrait of Bernardo da Luzzo Nas, 1500; and again acting for the Metropolitan Museum, New York, Mr. Remington paid £170 for a wax model of a worthy of Brescia, 1527.

Did Robert Burns ever own a pair of silver sugar-tongs? A pair purporting to have been the poet's fetched 5 guineas in an adjoining room.

1,000 MILES WALK AT 70 IN 20 DAYS

London, July 28.
Charles W. Hart, the seventy-year-old athlete, completed yesterday afternoon the feat of covering 1,000 miles on foot in twenty days. Footsore but surprisingly fit after his gruelling race against time, he arrived back at his home at Beckenham at 4.45 and was cheered by a crowd of friends and neighbours. During his 1,000 miles walk, into South-West England, and back again across to the South-East, he encountered much rough weather during the three weeks.

JAPAN'S RICH MEN

PREMIER'S £500 A YEAR

London, July 26.
The highest income-tax payer in Japan is Baron Kichizemon Sumitomo, who must pay a levy of about 800,000 yen on an income of three million yen, (about £170,000 sterling). Baron Takakimi Mitsui is second, with an assessment of 682,352 yen, while Baron Hisaya Iwasaki, of the Mitsubishi interests, is third, with a payment of 522,893 yen.

Practically all the taxpayers whose payments run into hundreds of thousands of yen are closely connected with the inner circle of big financial and industrial combinations which hold in their hands so much of Japan's industry, trade, banking, and shipping: the Mitsui, Mitsubishi, Sumitomo, Yasuda, etc.

The Hollywood scale of salaries is unknown in Japan. The highest income-tax payer among the artists of stage and screen is the famous kabuki actor, Kikugoro, who is billed for 6,000 yen. But the levies on three popular cinema actresses, Misses Miura, Irie, and Kurishima, are set at the modest figures of 170.68 yen, 527 yen, and 370 yen.

Comparatively few Japanese pay income-tax, because incomes of less than 1,200 yen a year are exempt; and less than ten per cent. of the Japanese earn more than this amount.

By comparison with Western Europe or America, low incomes, salaries, and wages are the rule in all strata of Japanese society, from industrial magnates to day-labourers. No individual in Japan receives the equivalent of a million American dollars as an annual income.

The scale of Government salaries is very modest. Mr. Hirota, the Premier, receiving only 9,600 yen (a little over £500).

SPAIN'S COAL DEBTS

WELSH EXPORTERS' NEW SELLING TERMS

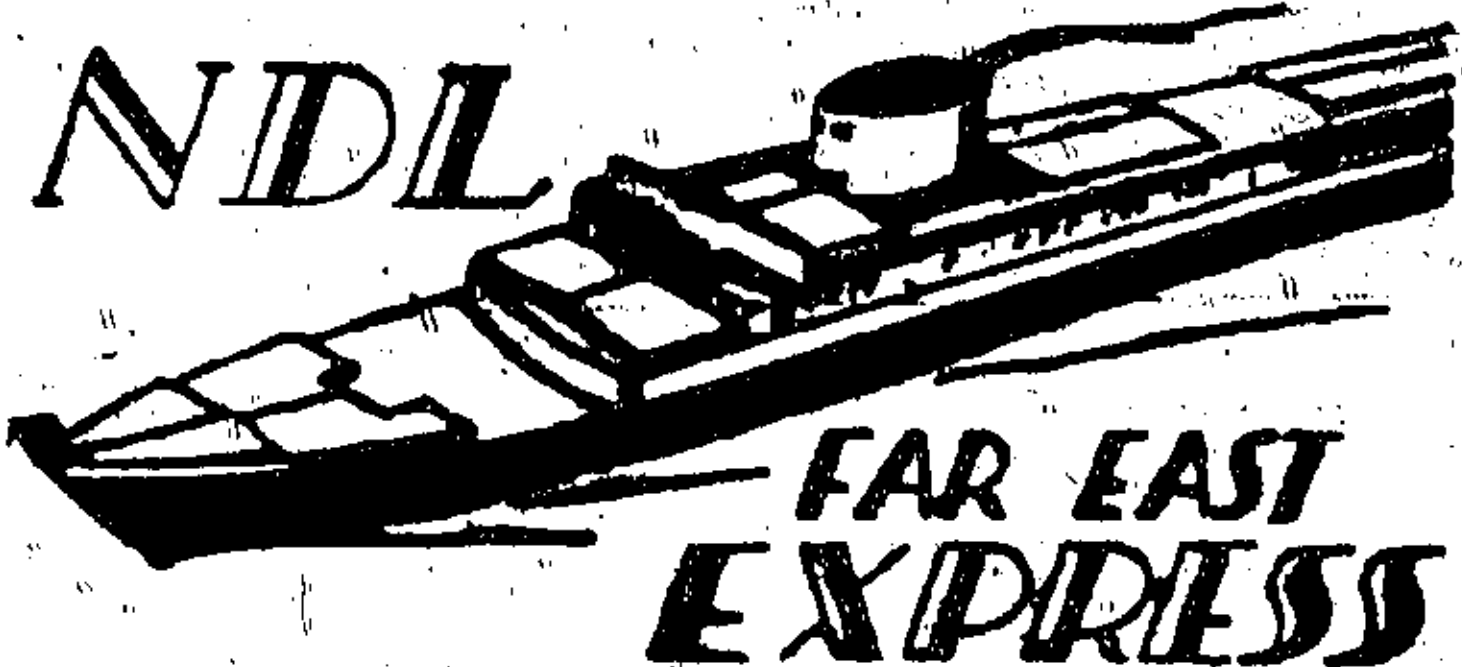

The serious situation that has arisen in connexion with British coal trade with Spain has compelled Welsh exporters, who claim about three-fourths of the entire United Kingdom shipments to this market, to introduce new conditions on which they are prepared to continue trading.

The object of these conditions is to minimize debts. By confining sales to ships at the ports and obliging the customer to provide the vessels to carry the supplies each shipment will involve a much smaller sum than if the exporter sold c.i.f. or delivered the supplies at Spanish ports; took the risk of providing at least part of the freight, and waited months for reimbursement.

Last January a clearing agreement was entered into with Spain which provided that sterling obtained from the sale of Spanish produce in Britain should be earmarked for the settlement of coal and other debts. This agreement has not fulfilled expectations, and to-day it is estimated that from £1,000,000 to £1,500,000 are owed for coal, of which two-thirds are due to Welsh exporters.

Spain last year imported 1,243,000 tons of coal from Britain, including 843,000 tons from South Wales, but this year exports have fallen heavily, totalling 424,000 tons in the first five months, as against 650,000 tons in the corresponding period last year. (The Manchester Guardian).

A campaign for sanitation was launched by the Women's New Life Movement Service Corps in Shanghai on Tuesday in villages in the vicinity of the Civic Centre, Kiangwan and Yinzhang. More than 60 boy scouts co-operated with the corps in distributing 3,000 hygienic bags containing medicine and implements for cleaning to villagers of the three districts. According to the authorities, of corps, their work in pushing the new life movement has made favourable progress. Contributions in money and in kind have been received from various sources to help the movement.

Shanghai, Aug. 7.

The establishment of a Japanese financing organ, capitalized at ¥10,000,000, was discussed on Wednesday evening by leading members of the local Japanese community, with Mr. Yutaro Tomita, Financial Commissioner in London, and Mr. Mimori Inamori, a secretary of the Tokyo Treasury, who arrived here on July 28 from North China, and, after a brief stay, will proceed to other cities of Central and South China, before returning home late this month. Mr. Inamori, it is understood, in September will be appointed Commissioner of the Finance Ministry in China, with offices here and in Tientsin.

In urging the visitors to assist in the creation of an organ to finance local Japanese enterprises, these, present complained that the current depression has cut the business turnover by 20 per cent. and reduced the number of Japanese factories here from 75 to 33.

Mr. Tomita suggested the establishment of a Japanese Indus-
